

Dief Upbraided Envoy After JFK-Mike Chat

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Post says Prime Minister Diefenbaker let loose with an angry harangue against President Kennedy last year after Kennedy had a private talk with Liberal Leader Pearson.

The Post says in a front-page story today the outburst came when Livingston Merchant, former U.S. ambassador to Canada, called on Diefenbaker for a farewell chat after Merchant decided to retire from the diplomatic service.

The newspaper, a strong supporter of the Kennedy administration, says that instead of a pleasant exchange, Merchant was met with an outburst because a few weeks earlier Kennedy had chatted privately with Pearson when Pearson attended a White House dinner for Nobel Prize winners.

Not only did Diefenbaker express his fury but he made a threat, The Post says. He told Merchant he had an offensive document the president had used during his May, 1961, Ottawa conference.

URGES OAS ENTRY

This was the much-reported working paper, prepared by presidential adviser Walt Rostow, urging Kennedy in his talks with Diefenbaker to "push" for Canadian entry into the Organization of American States, greater Canadian support for the Alliance for Progress program to help Latin American countries, more Canadian foreign aid and more vigilance in control of the Communists in Asia.

The Post says Merchant reported the incident to Washington, along with the Diefenbaker threat to make the working paper public and was instructed to tell Diefenbaker that he, Merchant, could not report the conversation to Kennedy. If he did, this would mean the end of further Kennedy negotiations with Diefenbaker.

The newspaper says that when Merchant visited Diefenbaker a second time, the prime minister was more composed and stated the working paper would not be used in the election campaign then coming up.

MENTIONED THREATS

The Post's report is the latest in a number on that working paper. Initial dispatches during the heat of the Canadian election campaign claimed the working paper contained economic and other threats against Canada and that it touched on the Canadian nuclear controversy and the Columbia River power treaty.

High sources have said that in fact there was no mention of the Columbia River or nuclear arms or any threats of reprisals.

On April 6, The Post reported in a dispatch from Montreal that the working paper contained a marginal note scribbled in Kennedy's handwriting. The Montreal Star, which was the first to report on the marginal note, quoted it as stating: "What do we do with the (deleted) on this point?"

In its Montreal dispatch The Post said it learned the deleted letters were S.O.B.—insulting a derogatory reference to the Canadian leader.

Immediately after the Post story appeared, it is understood the White House got in touch with the Post editors and denied that any such reference to the prime minister had been made. Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, told this reporter he had explored the question of the alleged derogatory reference with high government officials and was told the president had made no such statement.

The Post now says the president is certain the S.O.B. does not appear on the working paper. He thinks he may have written O.A.S. but no one in Washington appears to be certain about that point.

There is no explanation of how the working paper was misplaced. The Post suggests the president carried it in his pocket and dropped it while at dinner.

OTTAWA (UPI)—Outgoing Prime Minister Diefenbaker declined comment today on the Washington Post story on the now famous "working paper."

Dry Swedes Will Get Some Liquor

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Some relief was in sight today for thirsty Swedes as mediators achieved a partial settlement of a liquor strike which began seven weeks ago.

State liquor stores made plans to resume sales of hard liquor on a partial scale by next week after 175 administrative officials in the government liquor monopoly agreed to return to work with a contract providing longer paid vacations. But 130 foremen rejected the proposals and stayed out.

The return of the administrative officials will permit distribution of stocks in the warehouses when the strike began. But the refusal of the foremen to return will prevent new production. Strict rationing is expected in Sweden's 270 liquor stores.

TORONTO STAGES RECEPTION

150,000 Whoop for Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto opened its heart today in a jubilant, boisterous tribute to its triumphant Maple Leaf hockey team—1963 Stanley Cup champions.

The Leafs' 3-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings Thursday night in the deciding game of the best-of-seven final brought out about 150,000 happy people to line downtown Bay Street and cheer the team to a civic reception at city hall. (See story Page 10.)

The players rode in cars up Bay Street preceded by the band of the Queen's Own Rifles and flanked by motorcycle policemen with flashing red lights and moaning sirens.

Team officials and club owners rode proudly in the first car containing the Stanley Cup, symbol of world hockey supremacy.

Centre Dave Keon, the star of the final game, was given a tremendous cheer when he mounted the city hall steps.

Team captain George Armstrong in a short speech told the crowd the team was happy and proud.

Ticker tape showered down on the crowd 25 minutes before the parade was due to pass.

A chant "we want Keon," which started in a small section of the crowd, spread to a crescendo among the thousands packing the street.

Placards and banners sprouted up from the crowd the largest of which read: "Hockey, the greatest sport; Leafs the greatest team; Keon the greatest player."

Police gave a "conservative" estimate of the crowd in the immediate vicinity of city hall at 25,000.

BODIES OF 2 MINERS BROUGHT TO SURFACE

MALARTIC, Que. (CP)—Rescue crews early today hauled to the surface of Hygrade Gold Mine the bodies of miners Hilaire Champagne, 33, and Maurice Langlois, 30, trapped 400 feet beneath fallen rock since Thursday.

Hopes at the minehead through the night that one of the miners was still alive were dashed when rescue crews deep in the cave-in mine shaft signalled that both men were dead.

Champagne leaves a wife and seven children. Langlois leaves a wife and two children.

Missing Witness Attacked

LONDON (Reuters)—A Jamaican entertainer was charged today with wounding Christine Keeler, 21-year-old model who made British headlines last month as the "missing witness" at a London trial.

The accused, Aloysius Lincoln Gordon, 31, was remanded until next Friday.

Miss Keeler suffered a black eye and cuts and bruises during an attack outside a friend's apartment Thursday night.

Reason for the attack was not immediately disclosed.

Miss Keeler was the "missing witness" in the trial of another Jamaican charged with shooting at the door of the apartment in which she was staying.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy denied today that anyone in the United States government "ever informed" Cuban exile leader Jose Miro Cardona that the United States would launch an invasion of Cuba.

While rejecting Miro's charge that Kennedy had made such a promise and reneged, Kennedy also appealed for co-operation from the Cuban leader and all other Cuban exiles.

He said, however, that "we must maintain control of our policy here in Washington, and we intend to do just that."

Kennedy discussed the Cuban situation in reply to questions after addressing a luncheon meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The president said there is basic difference of interest between Cuban exiles and the U.S. in one respect. The Cubans feel "the only way they can return to their homeland is by military action of the United States." But the Washington government, he said, is conscious of its obligation to many countries all over the world.

Kennedy said that, under conditions as they now exist, the use of blockade or invasion against Cuba would be a mistake. He added he did not know what the future would bring, but he emphatically ruled out military action under present circumstances.

Legal Group Favors Full-Time Tax Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association suggested today the formation of a special group of tax and law experts to devote full time to "the development, preparation and observation of tax legislation."

Appearing before the royal commission on taxation, the association said the special group could be formed by senior officials of the departments of finance, justice and national revenue.

S. E. Edwards, a Toronto lawyer and member of the association delegation, said there have been cases where amendments to the Income Tax Act were made hurriedly to cover particular situations at the time. These, he said, tend to cause eventual imbalance in the act.

The proposed special group would keep the entire act under constant review.

The four-man association delegation devoted much of its discussion to complex legal points of the Income Tax Act which they hoped the royal commission would study during its investigation.

H. P. Lemay of Montreal said one of these points involves the procedures under which police and revenue department investigators carry out raids in connection with suspected tax evasion.

"They can cart away indiscriminately anything they think can be used in their investigation," he said. And unlike similar action under the Criminal Code, they didn't have to furnish the owner with a list of the things taken.

PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle said tonight the survival of France in the nuclear age requires a purely French national atomic force.

In a nation-wide radio-television address the president reaffirmed his intention, spelled out in his Jan. 14 press conference, to go it alone in the field of nuclear weapons.

He said French armament would be co-ordinated with defenses in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and especially with American atomic power, but would not be handed over to others.

The president said a strictly French nuclear deterrent is necessary to forestall enemy attacks on French soil in the midst of a possible intercontinental conflict.

ECM POLICY UNCHANGED

De Gaulle also reassured his opposition to British entry into the European Common Market at this time—again repeating a theme of his January press conference.

In speaking of the Common Market, he took an intensely nationalistic line and declared that France would not surrender any of its sovereignty.

The president asserted that would be co-ordinated with European co-operation must be based on co-operation among nations because any "abdication" by European states, in particular by France, would inevitably lead to foreign domination.

The president, reiterating that the British people have "attachments beyond our (European) community," summed up his European policy in this phrase:

"In brief, it seems essential to us that Europe must be European and France must be France."

Warheads Issue Settlement Seen

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy and Liberal Leader Pearson likely will attempt to settle the Canada-U.S. nuclear controversy before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministerial conference opens at Ottawa May 22.

Informants said one issue the president plans to take up with the prime minister-designate at their first formal conference—probably early next month—is provision of U.S. nuclear warheads for Canadian defence forces in Europe and Canada.

American authorities see no major problem in getting Pearson to agree to accept the warheads, since the latter indicated during the election campaign just ended he would meet Canada's obligations under NATO and the North American air defence agreement.

This would mean arming the Canadian air division and army brigade in Europe with American nuclear weapons.

U.S. Gov't Backs Canada In Opposing Trade Curbs

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. government has rushed to Canada's support in condemning a proposed bill which would increase handling, packaging and marketing problems for Canadian goods sold in the U.S.

One section of the bill is aimed specifically at curtailing Canada's huge U.S. lumber market.

Assistant Treasury Secretary James Reed has told the Senate finance committee the U.S. government considers the proposed legislation a violation of international trade obligations and that in all likelihood it would be vetoed by President Kennedy if ever approved by Congress.

The legislation, approved by the House of Representatives but bottled up in the Senate committee, would force U.S. importers and distributors to stamp the country of origin on all imported and repackaged goods, so that each time the goods are moved from one container to another, the new container would have to be so marked.

It also would require all Canadian lumber sold in the U.S. to be marked with the country of origin, a move which U.S. lumbermen attempted to push through the U.S. tariff commission but were turned down.

U.S. lumber industry has been in the transcript of committee hearings held last month, said also the general provisions of the bill "would seriously endanger many Canadian exports to the U.S., specifically trade in goods which are normally shipped in bulk for repackaging in the U.S."

"For example, there is an important seasonal trade between Canada and the U.S. in agricultural products which would be adversely affected. Such products include eggs, meat and meat products, forage and grass seeds, feedstuffs, fresh fruits and vegetables."

NEW YORK—"I want a balloon, man. I'm going to the circus."

So saying, narcotics detective Anthony Schiano bought three balloons from the bicycle-riding pedlar, two yellow and one red. The price: $6 each. The reason for the price: A tiny packet of heroin inside each balloon.

It took weeks of surveillance on Manhattan's lower east side to discover who was selling the narcotics in broad daylight, and more days of eavesdropping to overhear the password.

But patience bore fruit, and William Yeugelyvitz, 28, was taken into custody. Officers, who started looking for a "pusher" weeks ago, had seen Yeugelyvitz many times, innocently peddling his bike around the streets.

Then one detective saw a man purchase a balloon with several bills and walk away without getting change. Later a known addict was seen buying a balloon. Balloons filled only with air were available for innocent purchasers, selling at a dime.

Schiano also learned the signal indicating that the alleged pusher had $6 balloons for sale: Two inflated balloons tied to the handlebars of the fancy green English bicycle.

LONDON — Princess Alexandra's five-foot high, 130-pound wedding cake is decorated with five sets of icing bagpipes in her Scottish fiancé's family tartan. It was announced today.

The princess, who marries Angus Ogilvy in Westminster Abbey Wednesday, asked especially that the bagpipes be put around the bottom of the cake. They are set against a background of interlaced white satin ribbon.

LONDON — The Kingdom of Tonga, in the southwest Pacific, will put gold coins into circulation Monday.

They will be the first gold coins in unrestricted circulation at face value as part of a nation's currency since the world-wide devaluation of gold more than 30 years ago.

The Royal Mint in London has made 10,800 pieces for regular circulation in Tonga. They are the first coins the mint has produced in gold alloy only with silver in 150 years.

The coins will be in three values, one koula (about $45), a half-koula and a quarter-koula.

The one-koula piece is about 1 1/2 inches in diameter.

LONDON — Experiments by Soviet meteorological experts have shown it is possible to increase sunny days over big cities in winter by as much as 15 per cent, the Communist party newspaper Pravda reports.

The newspaper, quoted by the Soviet news agency Tass, says the experts, who used planes in their experiments, also increased a fall of snow by as much as 2 1/2 inches and delayed its melting by as long as 10 days.

PLEASANT VALLEY, Mich. — Mrs. Clara Moyer, 100, performed her first marriage ceremony Wednesday since becoming Jasper Township's justice of the peace. Mrs. Moyer was elected justice of the peace April 1 after telling friends she had never been elected to a public office and had always wanted to perform a marriage ceremony.

LONDON — The Church of England in Wales has insured the life of a philanthropist for more than £200,000 ($600,000). It was disclosed Thursday.

The insurance was taken out on Sir David James, 75, to protect a donation of more than £200,000 Sir David gave the church several weeks ago.

Should he die within a year of handing over the money, his donation would be all but swallowed up by death duties. Should he still be alive a year from the date of the donation, a large portion of the gift would be saved from government-imposed death duties.

WASHINGTON — Mr. Magoo, the controversial monogoose who has been a major attraction in the Duluth Zoo, has received a full pardon from Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

The legality of having the animal in the U.S. was questioned shortly after Mr. Magoo was donated to the zoo last November by a merchant seaman.

A 1909 law bans monogoses, and fish and wildlife service officials said Mr. Magoo would have to be deported to India.

Udall, acting on appeals from zoo visitors and others in Duluth, granted a delay in the scheduled deportation. He followed this Thursday by extending the stay indefinitely.

PARIS POLICE ARREST WOULD-BE ASSASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Police have captured Serge Bernier, alleged to be one of the organizers of the abortive attempt to assassinate President de Gaulle in August, 1962.

Bernier, alias Jean Murat, was seized after a gun-fight Thursday night.

Police said Bernier was one of those sentenced to death in absentia at the trial earlier this year of the would-be assassins.

Their leader, air force Lt.-Col. Jean-Marie Bastien-Thiry, was executed. Five other men were sentenced to death, three in absentia.

The death sentences of two were commuted to life imprisonment.

been seeking alternative ways to restrict lumber imports from Canada ever since the tariff commission ruled that under the new Trade Expansion Act the U.S. industry has no grounds for obtaining higher tariff protection against Canada.

Senator Paul Douglas, Illinois Democrat, also went to Canada's aid during the hearings, charging that the U.S. lumber and other industries were trying to impose new barriers against Canada. He suggested that even though Canadians sometimes do things to irritate the U.S., there is the possibility the Canadian government would retaliate against the U.S. by imposing curbs against U.S. goods.

Clarence Blau, a commerce department witness, agreed the bill merely will impose new trade barriers. He told the committee the U.S. is trying to negotiate the lumber issue with Canada but these negotiations could not be pursued actively during the Canadian election campaign.

NOISE FIGHT

Hot Rods Cleared By Wyatt

City manager C. C. Wyatt told finance committee Thursday the Oak Bay Avenue A & W Root Beer drive-in is as "busy as the Fountain Circle" and that's why neighbors complain of noise.

Committee turned over a 30-name petition demanding action to stop car noises to city solicitor T. P. O'Grady.

Mr. Wyatt said the main noise problem at the drive-in was not from "hot rods" creating a racket but the sheer volume of cars entering and leaving.

Ald. J. L. W. McLean said it would be impossible to stop some youngsters from racing the engines of their cars in any event.

"You might as well try to stop dogs from barking," he said.

Ald. McLean added that the drive-in, established under a council decision to create a spot commercial zone in a residential area, "is another example of where our hindsight is probably better than our foresight."

Committee recommended city council approve a $6,500 grant to the recently-formed Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau provided other Island municipalities paid their proportionate share. A separate request for the annual $50,000 grant to Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau will be considered by estimates committee.

Committee tabled a proposal for a bylaw requiring ambulance attendants to obtain an industrial first aid certificate to find out how many need one. Metro health chief Dr. John Whitbread endorsed the proposal.

Discouraged by low bids—the highest was $12,250—for a three-bedroom house on the old Mountain View Home property, committee members decided to call for tenders to have the house moved to a nearby city-owned lot where it could be sold for a much higher amount.

A Pearson-Kennedy settlement of the issue would ease the way for Canada to join other NATO countries in the proposed inter-allied nuclear force. A U.S. authority said the NATO meeting at Ottawa likely will complete agreement for the inter-allied force but the major issue of developing a multilateral force of surface ships and mixed crews likely will be put off until next December.

The inter-allied force is to be made up of the three U.S. Polaris submarines to operate in the Mediterranean; the British Vulcan Bomber fleet; the various tactical air squadrons and Honest John and other nuclear weapon assigned to NATO.

Control over their warheads will not be yielded to NATO either by Britain or the U.S. However, these countries would agree to have their assigned forces operate under fixed target positions set up under joint NATO guidelines. A body of officials to establish these guidelines may emerge at Ottawa.

MILITARY 'EXCHANGE' PROPOSED

GENEVA (AP) — The United States said today an exchange of special military missions with the Soviet Union would help relax world tension and reduce the risk of war.

U.S. Ambassador Charles G. Stelle told the 17-nation disarmament conference the missions would help to reassure the two superpowers of each other's peaceful intentions and would have great value "in improving relations and mutual understanding between the two governments."

Stelle urged Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin to reconsider his rejection of the idea.

He said such missions would enable the receiving government to clarify its military activity to the other side and avoid misunderstandings.

A helicopter owned by Okanagan Helicopters Limited made three trips into the deep muddy country to bring out the four other men, two women and five children.

The 12-member party started out from a sawmill, where the men were employed, in a half-ton truck Monday, intending to reach Fort St. John that night. The logging road turned into a "sea of mud" and rain made conditions worse.

Because of difficult walking conditions, the party stayed close to the truck Tuesday, hoping aid would arrive. Sandwiches were their only food.

TRAGEDY STALKS TROUPE

Third Wallenda Dies In Show Ring Plunge

OMAHA (AP)—The billing in the program said:

"Skiing the borderline of eternity in the dome of the auditorium."

Yetta Grotfent, 42, of the famed circus aerialist family, the Wallendas, had reached the climax of her solo act.

She stood on her slender 50-foot pole, swaying back and forth in a wide arc.

The pole was on a back swing when Yetta plummeted to her death before 4,666 spectators Thursday night.

That was how death claimed its third member of the troupe in 16 months. Dieter Schepp, 23, and Richard Faughnan, 29, were killed in Detroit Jan. 20, 1962 in a high-wire accident involving seven members of the troupe. Yetta was not a member of that act.

Several circus people said they had heard Yetta wasn't feeling well before she began her solo act at the Tanager Shrine Circus.

Some spectators said the aerialist appeared to slip.

EQUIPMENT DAMAGED

Fellow performers said Yetta had been nervous since the circus opened here Monday. They said her apparatus had been damaged last week in Florida and temporary repairs had been made.

"I don't think there was anything wrong with the pole," said Barbara Woodcock, member of an animal act. "But Yetta was just plain worried."

Other show members said it appeared Yetta bent to place her foot in a strap, then "seemed to faint."

Yetta fell face upward until she hit a guide rope 15 above the bright green sawdust on the floor. The impact spun her around and she hit the floor spread-eagle and face downward.

Circus performers said the dead woman was born Henrietta Kreis in Germany and that with her sister, Helen, she joined the Wallenda troupe in the U.S. Helen married Karl Wallenda. Arthur Grotfent is Karl's half-brother.

PORTLAND, Me. (AP)—"We must go on," said Karl Wallenda. "It is already arranged."

The 58-year-old head of the famed Wallenda aerial troupe, his brother Herman, 60, and their nephew Gunther, 34, learned Thursday night, while watching a television program, that Yetta Wallenda has been killed when she fell 50 feet from a slender pole during her act at Omaha.

The three are to perform in Lewiston, Me., tonight.

They completed their daring high-wire exhibition in Portland Thursday night to thunderous applause, unaware death had struck their troupe for the third time in little more than one year.

Karl suffered pelvic injuries in a Detroit accident in 1962 in which two of the troupe died. Then, he said the act was his family's way of life and would continue.

"What can we do? Fold up the act? It is our living," he said Thursday night.

Karl said that though the Wallendas have not always performed together, Yetta, his sister-in-law, had been a member of the troupe for the last 15 years.

DOESN'T HAVE TO TELL

Psychiatrist Sacrosanct

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court judge ruled Thursday that a court cannot compel a psychiatrist to reveal admissions by a patient.

"It is the genius of the common law to move with the times," said Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart during a suit for al-mony by Mrs. Gladys Demble of Toronto against her husband Walter of Cookville, Ont.

"You have made medical history today, doctor," he told Dr. William Peter Kyne of Toronto who had refused to say what Mrs. Demble told him during interviews in June, 1961.

Dr. Kyne maintained he must refuse to answer questions concerning his patient because this would violate his professional ethics.

Walter Williston, counsel for Mr. Demble, contended that in law a confidential disclosure by a patient to a physician, or the confession of a penitent to a priest, is not privileged.

"This has been the law for over a century," he said.

"TIMES HAVE CHANGED"

"When the law was first promulgated, there was no such thing as a psychiatrist," said Mr. Justice Stewart. "A surgeon was a barber; a physician little more than a herbalist. Today the situation is quite different."

He said he felt it is inimicable to a fair trial to force the doctor to give evidence. A couple whose marriage is troubled go to a psychiatrist and are completely frank, believing that what they say will never go beyond his office.

He said it shocks his conscience to think of this evidence being used against one of them in a court of law.

He said this was the first time in the history of Canadian jurisprudence that this position has been taken toward a psychiatrist.

Dr. Arthur Kelly, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said in an interview later he welcomed the ruling.

New Rebel Bid Nipped in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES—Argentina's military chiefs say they have nipped another power bid by navy and civilian rebels who staged an abortive revolt April 2.

The armed forces and the interior ministry headed by Gen. Enrique Rauch reaffirmed their pledge to hold presidential elections scheduled for June 23. The public regarded the promise as a defence ministry communiqué.

Meanwhile, the military remained on the alert, and tension continued to hang over Buenos Aires. Armed patrols roamed downtown streets Thursday night and there were unconfirmed reports that tank and anti-aircraft units had been ordered to bases near the capital.

que Thursday night said the latest plot was being fomented by a small minority involved in psychological warfare to offset their previous defeat.

The interior ministry had announced earlier the arrest of seven close advisers of deposed president Arturo Frondisi. They have been charged with plotting a Communist revolution. Eight others were being sought.

President Jose Maria Guido, reported ill, conferred at length with the military chiefs at his suburban home.

Canada at Geneva

THE PEARSON GOVERNMENT must soon deal with the most daunting set of national problems in modern times. But none is more important than the problem of expanding the nation's exports (important especially to British Columbia) and bringing its trade into better balance after many years of heavy deficit. For that reason no nation is more concerned than Canada, a huge international trader, with the May meeting of the GATT partners in Geneva.

There the world-wide commercial partnership must consider the unexpected and depressing situation that followed Britain's exclusion from the European Common Market. All British and American planning had been based on Britain's economic marriage to the Six but the failure of these hopeful plans does not mean that nothing can now be done to expand the free world's commerce.

On the contrary, the growing dilemma of the world economy, as outlined on this page the other day by Miss Barbara Ward, the distinguished economist, must compel strong action, despite President de Gaulle's tragic veto at Brussels.

Under his Trade Expansion Act, President Kennedy possesses authority to reduce American tariffs drastically in return for reciprocal concessions from the United States customers. He proposes to begin tariff negotiations as soon as possible and thus to test out the real intention of the Common Market.

It has excluded Britain, to satisfy President de Gaulle's undiluted Europeanism, but is it prepared to negotiate systematic reductions of its common external tariff? We shall get an answer to this, the central question, toward the end of the present year or early in 1964.

Meanwhile, at Geneva next month, the ground rules for the so-called Kennedy round of tariff negotiations will be laid down and the basic policies of the great trading nations clarified.

The policies of the Pearson government, in a broad way at least, have been clarified already. In the recent election campaign Mr. Pearson merely repeated what he had said throughout the last ten years—that somehow the present barriers to world trade must be reduced and that Canada must contribute its full share to this reduction.

Since Mr. Pearson first urged this break-through, when he was minister of external affairs and when the world economy floated buoyantly on a deceptive postwar boom, tariffs have been substantially reduced but not sufficiently to forestall the world slump foreseen by such economists as Miss Ward.

As a statesman well and long aware of these dangers, Mr. Pearson may be expected, through his representatives at Geneva, to support with all Canada's resources the tariff initiative sponsored by the British and American governments.

The resources of Canada are limited, of course, but they are far larger than the nation's population. Canada is one of the world's major exporters and importers and as such can play an important role in the tariff bargaining to begin this year.

It is bootless to regret the attitude of the Conservative government to the Common Market and Britain's relations with it, or the general policy of protectionism (by many devices outside the tariff schedules) prevailing in Ottawa for the last six years. All that is water over the dam. An entirely new Canadian trade policy is now in the making. It should be indicated without equivocation at Geneva a few weeks hence and implemented in the ensuing tariff negotiations.

How Many Russians In Cuba?

CUBA'S ARMAMENT CONTINUES to be a hot topic in Washington, and the same uncertainty as to degree that delayed action at the time of the Cuban missile crisis still apparently plagues the administration.

Mr. Kennedy has publicized his belief that withdrawals of Soviet troops have taken place, according to agreement. On the basis of his figures it would appear that some 12,000 Russian soldiers still remain on the island, awaiting repatriation.

But Senator Keating told a Washington audience of newsmen this week that fresh arrivals have matched the withdrawals, maintaining the total at about 17,000 troops.

Deliberate continuation of Soviet forces in Cuba must have two serious effects. Such a policy would severely weaken the climate of co-operation and sober responsibility which Mr. Khrushchev established with his quick removal of the offending missiles from Cuba. And this in turn would sharpen United States doubts — already stirred — about Russia's ultimate intentions in the Caribbean, with a consequently harder policy from Washington.

The second effect would be internal. Retention of the Soviet forces would make it plain that Russia had no intentions of allowing Cuba to change its mind about Communism. President Castro would be reinforced in his position as a puppet of Moscow, and the regime would be made as permanent as Russian troops can make it.

It is therefore important that there should be no misunderstanding in Washington about the exact state of the Russian withdrawal. Public controversy between officials claiming full knowledge—but contradictory facts—should be resolved as quickly as possible.

Means to An End

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS in India have embarked on a social experiment which has large possibilities. They are assisting unwed female prison inmates to find husbands on their release, in the hope that the married state will be the best form of rehabilitation.

Apparently there is no lack of applicants for ex-prisoner brides and a number of weddings have already taken place, sometimes with village celebrations to start the couple off in style.

This may well be a major step forward in post-prison rehabilitation. But are the authorities prepared for a vast increase in minor female lawlessness? For it seems obvious that going to prison to win a husband with government assistance may become a favored method among many single but anxious ladies.

FROM OTTAWA

Mr. Pearson Has a Wealth of Talent for the Cabinet

ALTHOUGH Mr. Pearson has not yet taken office, he is already wrestling with decisions which are bound to have important consequences for the future of his party. Any change of government is preceded by waves of speculation about the composition of the cabinet. This is not surprising because the choice of men for key posts may in the end determine the choice of policies.

The collision with Mr. James Coyne was probably foreshadowed by the selection of Mr. Fleming as minister of finance when the Conservatives came to power in 1957. The appointment of Mr. Howard Green as minister of external affairs in 1959 was even more fateful, leading as it did to the Conservative split on nuclear policy and to the 1963 defeat at the polls.

Mr. Pearson faces some real difficulties in cabinet-making, not least of them the paucity of Liberal representation from the Prairie. But in most respects he is better off—in some much better off—than was Mr. Diefenbaker in 1957.

The largest difference is the fact that the Liberals have a powerful nucleus of men with cabinet experience whereas the Diefenbaker government consisted entirely of new men; members of a party that had lived for 22 years in the political wilderness.

The prime minister-elect has a second advantage: he is strong where the Conservatives were weak—in the province of Quebec. Mr. Diefenbaker, with nine Quebec members, had a rather limited choice in 1957 but his problem remained baffling even after his remarkable feat of 1958 when he swept 50 Quebec constituencies. A large group of his followers were too closely associated with the Union Nationale to be ministerial possibilities in Ottawa.

All of the Quebec ministers who served Mr. Diefenbaker down to the pre-election appointments, only one survives. It seems clear in retrospect that Mr. Balcer would have been the best choice as Quebec lieutenant. But Mr. Diefenbaker apparently was of another view in 1957. Despite Mr. Balcer's parliamentary experience, he was appointed to the comparatively minor office of solicitor-general while two newcomers were rewarded with posts of greater influence. The prime minister's judgment did not, of course, pass unnoticed in Quebec.

Mr. Pearson does not have to search for Quebec talent: he is surrounded by it. Whether there is among his Quebec followers anyone who can play the role of Ernest Lapointe, only time will tell. Indeed, Mr. Pearson's initial choices will not necessarily be decisive because some

FROM WASHINGTON

By MAX FREEDMAN

Middle East is Piled High With Enigmas

THE UNITED STATES must begin to think of a new policy for the Middle East. It is being driven to this course by three separate but related events. The federation linking Egypt with Syria and Iraq has changed the outlook for the Arab world. Egypt's search for rockets and missiles has reminded the world that old conflicts still simmer restlessly despite years of deceptive peace. Meanwhile Israel has begun a campaign for arms and new security guarantees.

Freedman

Confronted with these developments, the first response of the State Department has been to play for time during which it can study the situation. This decision, though far from heroic, is very wise. For the Middle East is piled high with enigmas and dangers that forbid impromptu remedies.

Basic Interests

Nothing is easier than to adopt a policy that will satisfy Israel or the Arab states. The problem that faces the United States cannot be solved on these easy terms. It must devise a policy that will protect the basic interests of the United States without doing anything to upset the precarious balance in the Middle East or taking sides in the political vendetta that disturbs the area.

The first point to realize, in weighing this American dilemma, is that the United States must conduct its policy within the restraints of honorable commitments which it cannot renounce. The State Department is fully aware of President Nasser's growing power as the spokesman for Arab unity. But it cannot retreat from America's links with Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

Thus President Nasser will be disappointed if he expects open or unequal American support for his leadership of the Arab community. The divisions in the Middle East and the realities of world power unite to prevent such a clear policy from being applied.

The commitments with respect to Israel are different but they are equally strong and honorable. The obligation to support Israel has been a constant element in American policy. It is fair to say that it is a national obligation that will be honored regardless of the fortunes of political warfare. That is as true today as it ever has been.

Clear Answer

What do these considerations signify in terms of American policy? For the immediate future, the answer is clear. The State Department has no convincing evidence as yet that anything has happened in the rearmament of Egypt to justify the sombre conclusion that the military balance has been altered to the peril of Israel. Nor has anything yet happened to justify American shipments to Israel of the new weapons, or any other military action that could be taken as a deliberate decision by the United States to take part in the arms race of the Middle East.

These policies may one day become inevitable. If so, they will be applied without hesitation and without weakness. But a margin of choice is still open.

The chance to influence unfolding events in the direction of peace and conciliation still awaits American policy. It would be tragic folly to cast aside this freedom of American initiative in the belief that events have already grown so grim that nothing but desperate remedies will suffice.

There is broad agreement among American policy-makers on this current policy of watchful waiting. The important differences occur when officials weigh plans for the long future.

Subject to later refinements, one tentative proposal, now in the early stages of discussion, seems worthy of special emphasis. It calls for an American guarantee, on absolutely equal terms, to both Israel and all the Arab states. The guarantee would be limited to the Arab-Israeli quarrel.

Under this qualification, the United States would refuse to recognize any change in the existing situation brought about by armed force, whether by conventional means or by new weapons. In addition, Israel or any Arab country, under attack or having reason to fear an early attack, would have the right to turn to the United States for immediate help to redress the dangerous military situation.

This policy is very different from the discredited Tripartite Declaration of 1951. Under that declaration no country in the Middle East had the right to ask Britain, France and America for assistance in fulfillment of a contractual pledge.

American Initiative

The three powers were free to do as much or as little as they wished once the emergency had occurred. These loopholes would be closed in the new arrangement. An American initiative in this troubled area would almost certainly be supported by Britain and France.

Until a better idea is submitted, this suggested policy deserves pride of place on the agenda for the Middle East, where no program can please everyone and where it must be the aim of statesmanship to avoid the arbitrament of extremes.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Ashamed

On Good Friday I spent the sum of $2 to see a movie. This so-called masterpiece of movie-making made such a mockery of human dignity that I was ashamed of myself for looking at it. Many people laughed whereas I could have cried.

It's the typical American film where "we're the good guys and they're the bad guys." The picture dealt with Second World War, naturally. After all we mustn't let the Germans forget, must we? They're beneath us; they killed our boys, which means none of them are any good. Well, that's not for me.

I'm a Canadian and I live by what I preach, which is more than most. "Love Thy Neighbor."

That is one of our commandments in the Bible. Yet every time we see an anti-German, Negro or Indian book, story or film, we slap God's words right back to him.

The film was a factual text as far as the invasion, etc. But as for the fine fighting men on the losing end, even in a story I fear we don't let them hold their heads up as they should. That beautiful country should never be united again. Through no fault of their own, for we are to blame for their depression after First World War. Therefore we are the guilty ones.

Please in the name of God let them have peace and give them a chance to hold their heads up as they should be allowed to.

ROSALIND MURRAY.

Election Faults

Two elections within one year have now been discharged and before another looms upon the horizon I would like to volunteer a few comments on what appears to be the usual procedure at every election on election day.

First, the location of polling booth centres where citizens are required to go to cast their votes: Such centres should be the easy of access. No elderly citizen should be required to climb six or eight steep steps (often without hand rail) at a private residence, nor grope along poorly-lit corridors into a basement suite in order to cast a ballot. Some citizens have volunteered the remark under such circumstances they would not bother to vote at another election.

Secondly, many of the DRO's are inefficient and incapable of discharging their duties satisfactorily; while others overstep the bounds of legality and disregard a voter's rights. In this instance a voter who had cast her ballot, upon returning to have it placed in the ballot box was amazed to see the DRO open the ballot to see whom she had voted for. This voter retrieved her ballot immediately, tore it up and stomped out of the polling centre, in which instance both the candidate and the voter was the loser. I could cite other discrepancies of the Election Act for which I feel it is time both consideration and adjustment is long overdue from those whose duties it is to supervise election procedure.

A VOTER.

Marine Garden Project

I have paid taxes in Oak Bay for many decades.

I have always been against slack or slovenly expenses by the council. Perhaps I am very critical of new ventures unless they have been very thoroughly thought through first.

When I first saw, a few days ago, a writeup of the Marine Garden Project I thought it would be a most interesting and valuable addition to Oak Bay's attractions.

So I read with dismay, that the Oak Bay Council had refused to approve these underwater marine gardens.

Surely this is a fine idea.

Surely the reason given for turning it down, namely that it would cause a traffic jam, is a very poor one because road regulations properly thought out and policed (rather useless having the first without the second) can readily control any danger of a traffic jam as the result of these gardens.

I am positive the sentiments above are those of the great majority of Oak Bay taxpayers.

STEEL PRICES TO HOLD IN CANADA
SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—There is no likelihood of a steel price rise in Canada in the near future, D. S. Holbrook, Algoma Steel Corporation chairman and president, told the company's annual meeting of shareholders Thursday.

STEEL PRICES TO HOLD IN CANADA

He made no reference to some recent increases in United States prices but said Canadian prices would remain static because of the "ever-present alternatives of other materials and with fabricated steel products made by our customers undergoing severe competition."

He also cited foreign steel, the cheapest in recent years, as a reason.

Mr. Holbrook said: "Prices in Canada are determined by competitive conditions, not only within the Canadian domestic steel industry, but also from foreign steel, particularly among Algoma's products competition from other materials such as concrete."

Gains Sliced at Toronto
Prices remained on the plus side on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, but many gains registered earlier in the day were during light late-day trading.

Gains Sliced at Toronto

Stocks were higher at Montreal in moderate trading. At New York gains and losses of key stocks were fractional.

AT TORONTO, the leading group, were the weakest on the industrial board. Canada Iron Foundries and Dominion Foundries and Steel each lost 1/4, while declines of 1/4 went to Steel Company of Canada and Hayes.

Papers, another of Thursday's leaders, were mixed. Atbitol was ahead 1/4, as was Fraser.

Treasury Bills Offered for Sale
OTTAWA (CP)—An offering of $100,000,000 of Government of Canada one-year treasury bills for sale through competitive tenders was announced Wednesday by Finance Minister Nowlan.

Treasury Bills Offered for Sale

The 365-day bills, to be dated and issued April 25, 1963, and to mature April 24, 1964, will be offered in bearer form only in denominations of $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000.

They will be fully interchangeable as to denomination and will be redeemable at maturity at any agency of the Bank of Canada.

Tenders will be received to noon Tuesday, April 23, from primary distributors of new Government of Canada issues.

AT LONDON

Glits derived continued benefit from government financing plans, although the market was rather less buoyant than Thursday. Gains ranged to 1/4.

U.S. dollar stocks were mixed but Canadian issues responded to further gains at Montreal and Toronto. Gains of point or more went to Price Brothers, Hiram Walker, International Nickel and Atbitol.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Woman Investor Lags in Canada

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

A study of stock market activity by men and women in Canada undertaken by the Montreal Stock Exchange indicates that Canadian women are not nearly as active in buying equities as their sisters in the U.S.

Percentage distribution of shares bought and sold worked out to 82.5 per cent males and 15.9 per cent females in the U.S.

The study points out that since the study was made of transactions on a Quebec exchange, it is possible that the influence of the Civil Code played an important part in the reduced percentage of females in the Canadian statistics. There was, however, sufficient distribution throughout the entire country for the statistics to have considerable validity.

Some attempt to categorize the types of individual stocks bought by women was made by the exchange and the indication was that women tend to be more conservative than men in their investments.

However, many women like to take a flyer once in a while. "It's like buying a mad new hat," one broker explained.

While considerable research has been undertaken in the U.S. along similar lines—panic selling by women on the New York Stock Exchange last May 28, 29 and 30 was revealed in a study by the exchange—the MSE effort is the first in Canada.

An official admission that Gulf Oil Corp. Ltd. has been buying British American Oil Co. Ltd. stock on the open market, given by BA president E. D. Loughney at the annual meeting in Toronto, raised considerable protests from shareholders.

Mr. Loughney noted that BA had traded in a tight range of $28.95 to $30.50 since the end of 1962 with most of the trading at $30—the price which had long been rumored was Gulf's standing bid.

As of the latest stock transfer report, Mr. Loughney said, Gulf now has 64.8 per cent of BA's 21,817,693 outstanding common shares. At the first of this year, Gulf is understood to have held about 60 per cent.

While Mr. Loughney preferred to look on the Gulf buying as an "expression of confidence" in BA, several shareholders expressed dissatisfaction and were applauded by the majority of the 200 shareholders present.

One shareholder wanted to know if the drop in price from $30 indicated Gulf had now lost confidence in BA. Another branded the pattern of trading of 10,000 to 15,000 shares daily at a pegged price of $30 was nothing short of manipulation.

There were other complaints about the general performance of BA stock and complaints that the company was under control of Gulf and was being run to the detriment of Canadian shareholders.

Construction in B.C. got off to a poor start this year with figures for the first quarter running 15 per cent below last year, W. H. Foster, president of Ocean Cement and Supplies Ltd. told the annual meeting.

He added that the company expects year-end figures will improve considerably and that the province will have slightly better than the poor cent increase forecast for the entire country by the Canadian Construction Association.

Ocean expects its 1963 operating revenues to be as high as last year but capital gains may fall off. In 1962 the company had net income of $1,536,329, equal to $1.55 a share, of which $675,646 was from the sale of property on Vancouver Island.

'Copter Picks Up Downed Fliers
FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP)—Two men whose light aircraft flipped over when making a forced landing near Fort St. John, B.C., were picked up unharmed Thursday.

Earlier the men, who landed Wednesday when they became lost in the northern region, reported on a radio transmitter dropped by an RCAF search plane that they were not injured.

The aircraft, a single-engine Aeronca 15, is owned by Merton J. Attwood, of Sand Point, Idaho, who was a passenger. The aircraft pilot was L. M. Peterson, of Spokane, Wash. They were picked up by a helicopter owned by Associated Airways based at Fort Nelson, B.C.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration has met with as little fuss as possible as a Cuban exile leader's charge that President Kennedy backed down on a promise of a second invasion of Cuba.

"Highly inaccurate and distorted," the state department said of Jose Miro Cardona's accusations—repeating what it said Monday night when some of the Cuban's charges were first reported—and then the administration lapsed into frigid silence.

From the president down, Washington officials are represented as determined not to engage in a running fight with Miro, who quit as president of the Cuban Revolutionary Council Thursday night.

STIR UP DISCONTENT
Evidently the reason for this administration tactic is that the chief power available to Miro is derived from whatever ability he has to stir up domestic discontent with Kennedy's Cuban policies.

Therefore, from Washington's point of view, the problem created by the Cuban is one of internal politics. The political situation on Cuba policy is already difficult enough for the administration as a result of inconsistent complaints from some members of Congress to the effect that the president is not taking effective measures to rid Cuba of Soviet-supported communism.

The tendency in the administration is to regard the Miro affair as an incident in this larger debate and to try to reduce its impact by reacting as little as possible.

Some authorities said Kennedy's concern is to establish the point that the U.S. government—not private individuals on the outside, however worthy their aims—will decide U.S. policy on vital issues involving possible war or peace in the Caribbean.

'New Economic Pattern Shaping Up'
MONTREAL (CP)—Eric Kierans, president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges, says a new economic pattern "that will find every section of business more closely entwined with governments at all levels than ever before" is developing in Canada.

He told the annual meeting of the Quebec branch of the Chartered Institute of Secretaries Thursday night that there will be a drastic change in the economic atmosphere in Canada within the next five to eight years.

Mr. Kierans also gave an unscheduled assessment of the economic policies of Canada's political parties.

He remarked that in the last federal election the New Democratic Party was the only one that knew what it was talking about, when it came to economics.

PRAISES NDP PROGRAM
When someone in the audience snorted, Mr. Kierans departed from his text and told him:

"It shouldn't be so surprising. The NDP program was written by some of the most learned economists in the country and the NDP candidates were the only ones who really knew what the costs of free trade would be.

"The Liberals paid their traditional lip service to free trade the Social Credit didn't even know what the hell it meant and the Conservatives were too busy worrying about whether their ministers would show up to bother about it."

Mr. Kierans said free trade would hit Canada's automobile and textile industries hardest.

DIDN'T BELONG
The automobile industry, economically speaking, did not belong in Canada.

"From the point of view of the international corporation it would be better to have one part of the automobile made in Oshawa. That part could be used in the complete line for all cars produced by the corporation."

Economically, it was logical that, when two countries produced the same product, the country capable of producing it most economically should be left to do so. The other country should concentrate on products it could produce better.

"The problem is that it takes a generation to develop this and in the meantime a lot of us die off."

U.S. Avoids Fight With Exile Leader

Cuban Exile Says U.S. Victim of 'Master Move'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, stepping down as leader of Cubans in exile, charges that President Kennedy has given Fidel Castro "absolute immunity in the execution of Khrushchev's sinister designs."

In a 6,500-word resignation letter that split the Cuban Revolutionary Council apart, Miro accused Kennedy of backing out on a promise of a second invasion and of "liquidating" the struggle for Cuba.

And he warned that the Russian premier, "day by day, will increase his army of local Communists" in the Western Hemisphere until a "terrifying catastrophe" develops.

In support of Miro and his stand, nine members of the 16-man revolutionary council quit during a 4½-hour session that followed his departure from the meeting room Thursday night.

No successor was chosen to head the council, which was formed with U.S. government support to launch the futile 1961 invasion at the Bay of Pigs. But Dr. Manuel Antonio de Yarona, Miro's right-hand man, said he would seek to strengthen the council by wooing more of the many exile groups into its ranks. He said every effort would be made to gain U.S. help for the Cuban exile cause.

Miro, first premier of the Castro regime who later defected, said Kennedy told him at a meeting in the White House April 10, 1962, nearly a year after the first invasion, that the problem of Cuba was essentially a military one and that the council should contribute the major contingent of soldiers.

'HAD ASSURANCES'
"I left the White House with the assurance that the liberation of Cuba would follow soon with Cubans at the vanguard in battle," he said. He indicated that this was to be in connection with the Cuban blockade that President Kennedy proclaimed Oct. 22, 1962.

Later, he said, U.S. policy on Cuba "shifted suddenly, violently and unexpectedly" and "the struggle for Cuba was in the process of being liquidated by the government."

The United States was the victim of a "master move" by the Russians, Miro declared.

During the negotiations that followed the blockade, he asserted, Khrushchev maintained in the Caribbean, strengthened Castro's military capacity to the point where he could smash an uprising of the Cuban people, and "immobilized" the United States and the rest of the Western Hemisphere.

"These, in all their crude reality, are the facts," Miro said.

The White House said there would be no comment. Miro had delivered a copy of his document to the state department, which called it "highly inaccurate and distorted."

CONSTABLE:

Man Admitted Driving Past Death Corner

Hendrick Witteveen was "either passed out or asleep in a chair" when a policeman went to his home to question him about one hour after a fatal accident on New Year's Day, an Assize Court jury was told Thursday.

Mrs. Witteveen had to slap his face and shake him before she was able to waken him, Const. Richard Ward testified. When awakened and questioned, Witteveen admitted he drove his car through the Richmond-Bay intersection at about the time that Arthur V. Sear, 79, of 2042 Meadow Place, was knocked down and killed.

Witteveen has pleaded not guilty to charges of criminal negligence, impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

'LOOK AT ME'

When questioned about the accident, Const. Ward said, Witteveen answered: "Look at me. Do I look like a person who would hit a man and leave him lying in the road."

Witteveen told police that he had not been drinking. Asked how he accounted for the smell of alcohol on his breath, the accused replied: "I had one drink at Government House about 3 o'clock."

Witteveen was employed as a steward at Government House.

UNSTEADY

Witteveen was unsteady on his feet when he went out to the garage, Const. Ward said. The constable said there was a strong smell of alcohol in the car when he took the accused to the police station for a sobriety test.

Const. Ward had gone to Witteveen's house after an eye witness to the accident gave him the licence number of a car.

DAMAGE

He found Witteveen's car engine was still warm when he inspected it and the right headlamp was wet but streaked as if cloth had been drawn over it. There was damage behind it.

The right front headlamp which the constable said had been done "within a day or so" since the bare metal was bright and showed no sign of rust or tarnish.

Witteveen's trial before Mr. Justice David Verchevre started Tuesday. It continues today before an all-male jury.

U.S. INCOME SKYROCKETS TO NEW HIGH

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. national income, boosted by record corporate earnings of $51,500,000,000, soared to an unequaled $458,000,000,000 last year.

The commerce department said Thursday corporate income before taxes shot to a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of $34,000,000,000 in the fourth quarter of 1962—higher than in any previous three-month period.

National income rose $30,200,000,000 over 1961.

Government Ends Italian Medical Row

TARGET of powerful criticism at home and abroad, Hans Globke, controversial right-hand man of Chancellor Adenauer, plans to retire when his chief does this autumn, West German chancellery sources said today. Globke, 65, has been secretary of state to Adenauer since 1953.

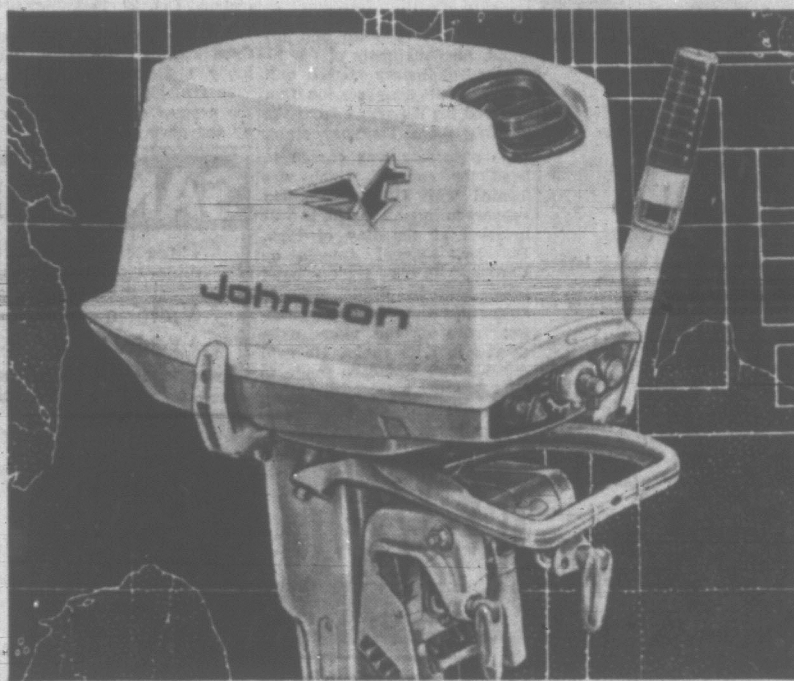

ROME (AP) — Government mediation ended today a week-old boycott of medical insurance agencies by 45,000 Italian doctors. The doctors' refusal to co-operate with the agencies provoked demonstrations that turned into riots in the city of Taranto.

Negotiators for the doctors and Italy's 200 state-controlled medical insurance agencies agreed on an immediate 40-per cent increase in fees for the doctors and negotiations to revise fee schedules and simplify the insurance forms the doctors must fill out.

Eighty per cent of Italy's 50,000,000 people, including almost the entire labor force, is covered by some kind of health insurance. In addition to wanting more money, the doctors said the forms they had to fill out for the agencies were too involved and time-consuming. The doctors averaged 300 lire (48 cents) for an office visit and double that for a house call. They asked $2.40 for an office treatment and $4.80 for a house call, but settled for 67 cents and $1.35 for the two categories.

Three Johnson compacts prove a little money can go a long way

Johnson compacts are amazing motors. Their initial cost is low yet their staying power is high. The compacts go a long way between gas stops (on 5 gallons of gas a 5½ can cruise for 11 hours). They only need servicing once a year and practically never see the inside of a repair shop. They start with the first pull and run religiously season after season. In the long run, a Johnson gives you more dogged dependability for your dollars than any outboard at any price.

The compacts are light and trim. Bulk and weight is pared to a minimum. Underwater exhaust and beveled gears mean the compacts run quiet. They are long on features other small outboards skip on, such as full gearshift, complete corrosion proofing, fuel pump, thermostat-controlled cooling.

Find out how far your money will go. See the Johnson Compact 18, 10 and 5½ at your Johnson Dealers. With almost a thousand dealers across Canada service is never a problem when you own a Johnson.

Boy Awarded $35,000 by Court

LAKE COWICHAN — William Ross Forrest, 10, of Lake Cowichan, who lost his right foot six years ago when he fell into a mechanical auger, which was shovelling sawdust, has been awarded $35,000 damages.

Mr. Justice T. W. Brown, in a B.C. Supreme Court judgment in Vancouver Thursday, set the figure against Mesachie Lake Fuel Company. The action was brought by the child's father, E. H. Forrest, 622 Sahtlam Road.

Lawyer Don Cunliffe claimed the defendants had been negligent in handling dangerous machinery without adequate protection.

DUNCAN — Cowichan District School Board in the future will pay all its union employees for overtime instead of giving them time off.

The board's decision followed a complaint from local I.W.A. against the practice of allowing time off for overtime instead of pay for school board employees belonging to the union.

Works superintendent Ed Burnett told the board that employees who are members of the union are given a choice of whether they want time off or overtime pay.

He said some prefer the money, while others choose time off "for such personal matters as hunting and family trips."

DUNCAN — The Zenith Gyro Club has offered to help provide additional facilities for sports and games at Cowichan Senior Secondary School.

A club delegation headed by Denis Hogan told a meeting of the Cowichan School Board that interest in track and field is increasing in Canada.

The Gyros are prepared to offer their services in providing additional facilities at the school, such as bleachers for track events and a shelter for referees, Mr. Hogan said.

DUNCAN — Bob Irvine was elected new president of the Kinsmen Club of Duncan, Tuesday night, succeeding Frank Fraser.

Other officers are: Bob Young, vice-president; Keith Fraser, secretary; Bob Major, treasurer; Trev Digby, registrar, and directors, Jim Jadine, Swan Nicolson and Jack Buzzard.

Members recently donated $25 to the local Girl Guides Association, and $25 to the Cowichan Cancer Campaign fund.

Kinsmen were informed the Kinsmen convention is scheduled for May 19 to 24 at Prince George.

A work party will be held at the home of Jack Anderson, on April 23, to make signs for the forthcoming Kinsmen-sponsored bingo night June 13.

COURTENAY — City council has decided to enforce its policy of requiring all groups to put in an appearance before receiving sanction for public appeals.

The mayor and most of the aldermen felt exceptions shouldn't be made and have instructed the city clerk to advise any groups in future who submit only written requests.

District Girl Guides were the last Monday to receive approval of a cookie drive without appearing before council.

The new policy arose last fall on complaints itinerant and local groups were infringing on United Appeal weeks to capitalize on its publicity.

SIDNEY — A grant of $3,200 will be given towards the construction of a new health centre in Sidney by the B.C. Tuberculosis Society.

Mrs. Alice Kimmitt, Victoria, a director of the society, informed the village council by letter that a cheque for $3,200 will be presented to the village in a short formal ceremony when the building is under construction.

The society's donation brings to $33,440 the amount of grants guaranteed for the centre.

Remainder of the money for the $63,600 project will be financed by the Sidney Water Works District, $7,000; Sidney Village reserve fund, $13,160; and $10,000 has been allocated in the 1963 budget.

SALMON ARM — A Courtenay family was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital here Thursday after being injured when their car struck a culvert after leaving the highway Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Groves, their daughter and a niece suffered minor injuries in the mishap.

DUNCAN — The addition to Maple Bay Elementary School is 98 per cent completed and classrooms are expected to be ready for use after the Easter recess, school trustee Pat Mason has informed the Cowichan School Board.

He also reported that the Bench Elementary School addition is 80 per cent complete.

GANGES — Logs bearing marks of various Vancouver Island Logging companies are washed up on Hawaiian Island beaches from time to time, according to Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hawkins of Salt Spring Island.

The couple, who spent a part of the winter in Honolulu, said Hawaiian forestry officials keep a record of the logs which have travelled 2,000 miles.

The logs are also put to good use, they said.

Maffeo Wants Action

NANAIMO — City hall should be kept posted on proposed real estate developments, Mayor Pete Maffeo says.

He complained that too many promoters persuade council to rush through bylaws clearing the way for rapid development, then nothing further is heard for weeks.

He mentioned particularly a 14-storey apartment development for Front Street, proposed by a Nanaimo real estate firm.

"I think we'll take our time in future unless we have more definite assurance of action," the mayor said.

He said it had been more than a month since the application to council.

"I think it is only fair that authors of local promotions keep city hall posted on these matters," Mayor Maffeo said.

"A" group of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Sooke Lake Road, near Goldstream.

The Nature House at Francis Park will be open on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Conducted tours will be held during the day.

Littlest Leaf Deciding Factor In Toronto's Stanley Cup Win

'They Played Hearts Out' Says Happy Punch Imlach

TORONTO (CP)—Before the Stanley Cup finals began, the experts figured Toronto Maple Leafs would wear Detroit Red Wings down with brute strength.

But when the assets were weighed after Toronto's clinching 3-1 victory that closed out the five-game series Thursday night, the deciding factor was the littlest Leaf of them all.

Dave Keon, a centre who weighs 163 pounds soaking wet, dominated that game by firing two goals to give the Leafs the best-of-seven series by four games to one for their second straight Stanley Cup victory.

Two nights earlier, Keon fired the winning goal in Detroit when the Leafs broke the Red Wings' hearts by whipping them 4-2 on their own rink.

Along with his scoring achievements, a playoff total of seven goals and five assists, the dark-haired stylist from Noranda, Que., skated relentlessly throughout the series, spearheading power plays, killing penalties and generally making himself a nuisance to the opposition.

Typically, both his goals Thursday night came while Toronto was short-handed.

The second, fired into an empty net from long range with five seconds remaining, came as an anti-climax after the battling Wings almost unbelievably failed to tie the game in the final minute.

The Wings' Norm Ullman missed a wide-open net from only 10 feet out as Detroit, with a two-man edge, worked frantically to tie the game in the dying minutes with the Leafs in front 2-1.

Toronto goaltender Johnny Bower and right-winger Gordie Howe were tangled up on the ice at the side of the net and Ullman's shot bounced off Howe's leg and dribbled over the two players. Bob Pulford of the Leafs had been in the penalty-box since 18:07 for holding Alex Delvecchio.

That set the stage for Keon's second goal into the net. Detroit goaltender Terry Sawchuk had vacated for an extra forward.

Apparently bewildered trio attempting to locate puck during hectic scramble in front of Detroit net during Thursday's Stanley Cup game in Toronto are goalie Terry Sawchuk, defenceman Marcel Pronovost and Toronto forward Bob Pulford. Despite valiant bid by Red Wings, Maple Leafs won 3-1.

NFL Shuts Door On Bet Scandal

NEW YORK (UPI)—Only one thing was certain today about the National Football League's betting scandal.

Paul Hornung, the "Golden Boy" of the Green Bay Packers, and all-pro tackle Alex Karras of Detroit Lions will not play in 1963.

Whether or not they will play in 1964, or ever, depends on their behavior, according to commissioner Pete Rozelle. And from here on in, the investigations into betting by players, which were triggered in January, are over.

That's the official line from the NFL today after an exhaustive study which failed to show anything more than that Hornung, Karras and four other members of the Detroit Lions made wagers on the outcome of regular NFL games, betting on their own teams or on games in which they were not involved.

However, there is reason to believe that the matter will not die there as indicated. It's too early to assess fan reaction, but early samplings show most fans were shocked at the severity of Hornung and Karras' punishment. Most league officials, including general manager and coach Vince Lombardi of the Packers agreed that Rozelle had no other alternative but to suspend Hornung, one of the league's greatest players, and Karras.

Other officials, inside and outside of the sport, seemed to feel the same way, claiming that there was a definite breach of contract by the two players, and inasmuch as the sport depends on public patronage for its existence, the players had to be suspended.

There are indications, too, that the senate subcommittee headed by John L. McClellan, may call for a comprehensive report on the entire investigation by Rozelle as part of its inquiry into gambling and reported fixing in football and other sports.

Hornung's genuine regret and honest admission that he had made a "terrible mistake" by betting on games more than likely gained him a point toward reinstatement. Karras, on the other hand, first hedged and then admitted he, too, had wagered on some games, but angrily snapped that as far as he was concerned "this thing isn't over yet. I am going to protest" the suspension.

Ironically, Karras already has been made a $40,000 offer to engage in a series of wrestling matches, and more than likely will agree. He wrestled once before under the name of "Killer Karras" and, because unlike Hornung who has invested his money wisely, Alex needs an income while on the football shelf.

TORONTO (CP)—There is a bigger difference between a winning and losing dressing room than a few bottles of champagne.

It's doubtful that Detroit Red Wings, who were swigging soft drinks, gave a hoot Thursday night that across the lobby Toronto Maple Leafs were popping corks.

Toronto had won the fifth game of the Stanley Cup final 3-1 to take the best-of-seven series in five games.

But the Wings, who felt they were out-lucked, weren't despondent.

The great Gordie Howe said it well.

"For a team that wasn't supposed to make the playoffs we showed up pretty well. But did you ever try to spit against the wind?"

Dave Keon, a nimble young man from Noranda, Que., was patiently answering questions and posing for photographers. He scored two goals for Toronto.

Keon was talking about his first goal, on which he overpowered Detroit's Alex Delvecchio, the lone defender, with speed.

"Delvecchio sort of stumbled," said Keon between sips of champagne. "I had to go to the left side and I knew I had him."

Andre Pronovost, who was involved in a collision in which Toronto's Carl Brewer broke his arm in the third period, doesn't know how it happened.

"I was on one skate when he (Brewer) hit me," said the Wing player. "I fell and hit my head on the boards and Brewer fell on top of me."

"With Brewer out, I'm awfully glad it's over," said Imlach in tribute to his talented young defenceman.

Detroit coach Sid Abel took time out to say there had been a misunderstanding at Detroit after Tuesday's game. He was asked by a reporter if Detroit fans were always as rowdy after a game as they had been after that one, showering the Leafs with paper cups and forcing coach Punch Imlach to discontinue a press conference in the lobby.

He replied that "a lot of those fans are from Windsor and Lasalle."

People in Windsor, across the Detroit River, are irate. They say they're all Toronto fans and wouldn't be bothering the Leafs.

Abel said Thursday night he wasn't aware of any disturbance in the lobby at the time because he had been in the dressing room before it started.

SAYS MISUNDERSTOOD

He claims he thought the reporter was asking about the fans during the game, those who were throwing eggs and other debris. Another writer says Abel told him Tuesday night that fans sitting behind the Red Wing bench, in the general area where some egg-throwers were sitting, were from Windsor and Lasalle.

Abel did not repeat this Thursday night, but said strongly there had been a misunderstanding—if Windsorites caused the lobby scene, he doesn't know anything about it.

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

NEW YORK—Ball players with gratitude are as hard to find as an albino in Katanga province. The ones who turn down fees to make speeches for nothing are scarce as midgits in the National Basketball Association. Maury Wills, the good thief, is as rare as a Cuban general suffering from barber's itch.

The greatest of all base stealers was sitting in the Los Angeles Dodgers' dugout before a game with Chicago. Frank Scott, the player's agent, dropped by to chastise him for his philanthropy.

"Do you know what kind of money I could of got you?" asked Scott.

The shortstop was embarrassed by the question.

"Yes," he said, softly, like a man admitting to a traffic cop he went through the red light.

The agent turned to me, 10 per cent of him in pain.

"Know what this guy did?" Scott said. "All winter long he made free speeches, all over the country. He just asked for expenses. He should have made a fortune."

"I know," murmured Wills, apologetically.

"Why'd you work for nothing?" I asked him.

"It was my way of showing appreciation," Wills replied.

Fame Turned Roger Maris Hostile

Stooped in reflection, Scott seemed to be estimating his 10 per cent of the amount Wills passed up.

"I wanted to return something to baseball," said Wills after a pause. "I just didn't want to take from it."

I remembered what it did to Roger Maris. He acted as if anyone who bid him good-morning should have been presented with a bill. Fame turned Maris hostile and grouchy. It hasn't altered Wills' personality at all.

"They'll be another year," the shortstop explained to Scott, consoling him.

"The money you lost," grieved Scott.

"Everyone was so nice," said Wills.

Going into a base, moving his body in rapid twists and flops, the good thief suggests a lizard slithering through mud. He appears to be boneless as a snake.

"It's not only being able to run fast, get a good lead, or get a good jump," said Wills who was only thrown out 13 times last year as he larcenously took 104 bases. "It's also the right state of mind. You have to do a lot of positive thinking. That's as important as the speed, the good lead or the good jump."

The base-stealer, said the ablest practitioner of this obsolete skill, can't rely on panic making the catcher throw inaccurately. He depends on his wriggling slide to beat the catcher's good throw if the ball gets to the base ahead of him. It sounds simple, as he tells it.

There is little deceit in Wills. The other team understands he's going to attempt to get to second once he reaches first.

"The pitcher's main job is getting the hitter out," Wills said. "He can't concentrate on me and also get the hitter out. He has to give up some place, either on me or the hitter."

It is Pete Reiser, the Dodger coach, Wills claims who is responsible for his spectacular revival of the lost art.

"He taught me positive thinking," said the shortstop as if Reiser inhabited his mind every time he gets on base.

"He taught me I could do it. He made me believe I can do it on any pitcher."

It started in '60.

"I was hitting .208," said Wills. "He'd take me out for early batting practice in the Coliseum every evening before the game. It wasn't only the instruction he gave me. It was the talking to he'd give me afterwards. We'd sit and talk for an hour and a half. Just sit and talk. It was more than swinging a bat, the talking."

Batting Important As the Running

The coach worked on him and, Wills insists, eliminated the fear of failure. The element of doubt was slowly razed. But this is another year and Wills has been out with an ankle injury.

"I don't care if I'm hitting .300 plus," Wills explained. "I'll be out three times a week with Pete. I won't stop. I want to keep in the groove. If I keep doing it, I won't fall into a prolonged slump."

The batting is as important as the running. Even Wills can't steal if he doesn't get on base.

"It was fun last year," he said. "I enjoyed it all. But it was also a strain, physically and mentally. The people were nice, everywhere I went. Now in Los Angeles... Kentucky... Spokane... any city I went, they recognized me and were nice."

When Wills stops running, they ought to elect him to the Hall of Fame twice. Once for being better than anyone else who ever used his feet to steal a base. Then they should do it again because of his attitude which is just as spectacular as his specialty on the field. As a matter of fact, I think it's a greater achievement.

Brewer Suffers Fractured Arm

It was the first time since the National Hockey League gained sole possession of the Stanley Cup in 1927 that there was no overtime in the semi-final or final series. The Leafs whipped Montreal Canadiens 4-1 and Detroit knocked off Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 in the semi-finals, all in regulation time.

Delvecchio scored the only Detroit goal Thursday night, thus atoning for letting Keon by on the 23-year-old centre's first marker.

There was one sad note to the Leaf festivities. Defenceman Carl Brewer, a mainstay of the club and a sure-fire candidate for the 1962-63 all-star team, suffered a broken left arm in the third period when he collided with Andre Pronovost of Detroit and hit the boards.

As the presentation of the cup took place on the ice, he was being hurried off to hospital.

A Detroit power-play backfired on Keon's first goal, before 14,403 fans at 17:44 of the first period. He scurried around Delvecchio to the left side and cut back in front of the net to beat Sawchuk with a 15-foot shot while defenceman Allan Stanley was in the penalty box for elbowing Howe.

The clock showed only 49 seconds of the second period when Delvecchio tied it 1-1. Howe fed the puck to the Detroit centre, who wasted no time in golfing it past Bower.

Eddie Shack scored at 13:28 of the third period. Defenceman Kent Douglas shot the puck from the blue line, it ricocheted off one or two Detroit players and then to Shack's stick. The Leaf left winger hardly had to move to put it past Sawchuk from in front of the net.

WINGS GIVEN CREDIT

This is only the second time the Leafs have been able to win both the NHL championship and the Stanley Cup. They did it before in 1948.

There has been speculation this season that manager-coach Punch Imlach would retire from coaching and stick exclusively to managerial activities if he was able to win both. But Imlach said Thursday night:

"I've said it before and I'll say it again. As long as they (the Leafs) will play hockey for me, I won't take on a coach. So far, I would have to think they have played their hearts out."

Imlach also paid tribute to Wings.

"They played awfully hard. You have to give them a little credit for that."

Home Run Bats Strangely Silent

(UPI)

Who has stolen the home-run thunder from the bats of the American League's sluggers?

Was it the rules committee with its new strike zone regulation? Maybe the manufacturers have taken some of the rabbit out of the ball? Or perhaps the pitchers are getting away with that old devil the spitball?

Whatever the reason, the pitchers have been having a ball at the expense of the hitters during the first two weeks of the campaign.

The figures show that there have been nine shutouts pitched and only 59 homers hit in the AL's first 35 games. At such a pace over the entire season AL pitchers would accumulate 180 shutouts—far more than the league record of 146 set in 1909 and considerably above the major league record of 163 in one league set by the National League in 1908.

Also, a mere 59 homers in 35 games represents a 13 per cent decrease in homer output from 1962 when AL sluggers hit 1,552 in 810 games.

There were only two games played in the AL Thursday and both resulted in shutouts. Dick Stigman pitched the first major league shutout of his career to give Minnesota Twins a 3-0 win over Los Angeles Angels and Ray Herbert tossed a three-hitter as Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City Athletics, 3-0.

Two homers were hit—one by the Twins' Earl Battey and another by the White Sox Dave Nicholson.

In the National League, San Francisco Giants beat Houston Astros, 6-3. Milwaukee Braves defeated Philadelphia Phillies, 6-5. Pittsburgh Pirates edged St. Louis Cardinals, 3-2, and Chicago Cubs scored a 3-1 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

Fire-Star Wins $45,000 Trot

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Fire-Star, an American-bred horse from Italy, led most of the way Thursday night and captured the $45,000 Transoceanic Trot at Yonkers Raceway, defeating seven foreign rivals.

The winner came home 1 1/4 lengths in front of the favored When, a New Zealand horse.

Belgium's Ravoli finished third in the 1 1/4-mile trot.

PITCH FOR PAN-AM ...

'Peg Bids for Games

WINNIPEG (CP)—A delegation of Winnipeg businessmen and council members today appeared before the Pan-American Games congress in Sao Paulo, Brazil, with a brief asking that the 1967 games be held here.

The brief, released in Winnipeg by Mayor Stephen Juba, said the estimated $1,380,000 cost of putting on the international sports event would be underwritten by the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Winnipeg, said Juba, already has facilities to handle track and field, wrestling, boxing, soccer, equestrian sports, basketball, volleyball, gymnastics, a military pentathlon, baseball, rowing, fencing, tennis, yachting and weight-lifting. Facilities would have to be constructed only for aquatic and cycling events in the city.

Among facilities already available are the Winnipeg Arena, with a seating capacity of 10,000; Civic Auditorium, with a capacity of 3,500; Minto Armories, with a capacity of 1,500, and Winnipeg Stadium, which would be expanded to seat 40,000 with the addition of 3,000 permanent and 25,000 temporary seats.

Winnipeg, the fifth largest city in Canada, has a population of more than 500,000 and serves an area with a population of 3,500,000. The brief says 81,000 visitors could be handled in accessible hotels, motels and private homes.

Junior Rocks Tackle Elders On Wednesday

Preparing to launch a new lacrosse season next week, Victoria Junior Shamrocks hope to start right where they left off last September.

They finished the 1962 campaign in a blaze of glory at Memorial Arena, overwhelming Brampton Excelsiors 20-7 to wrap up the Canadian junior final four games to two.

That triumph brought the Minto Cup to Victoria for the first time and the baby Rocks are determined to keep the historic piece of silverware here for at least another year.

Many of the players who were with the club last year are back for another campaign and the juniors would like nothing better than to start with a victory when they go back to the arena next Wednesday for their first taste of 1963 competition.

Winning doesn't promise to be an easy chore since they will be tangling with their big brothers—the Shamrocks of the senior Inter-City League.

For the exhibition effort, junior coach Tommy Druce has assembled almost the same squad that performed in the Minto Cup final, including five Vancouver aces who played standout roles as "replacements."

Again bolstering the younger Rocks will be goalie Norm Nestman, defencemen Bill Robinson and forwards John Surinak, Grant Jordan and Ross McDonald.

Proceeds Go to Injured Player

Among the Victorians due to appear are defencemen Ray Beech, Jack May and Bill Spotswood, and forwards Nirmal Dillon, Bill Munroe, Dave Collett, Glen Vickers, Jim Haggerty, Pat Mulcahy, Rod Kilduff and Ranjit Dillon. Absent will be Mike Woodley, visiting in Ontario.

One of Wednesday's highlights will be the presentation of blazers to players in recognition of their Minto Cup victory.

It will be a benefit game, with proceeds going towards medical expenses of Fred Sutton, Vancouver Legion player who is still undergoing treatment for a fractured cheekbone and nerve damage suffered in a game here last season.

The senior Rocks get an earlier start in competition. They visit Nanaimo Saturday night for a pre-season Shrine Cup game.

Coach Don Ashbee has plenty of hope but a shortage of players as he awaits Victoria's May 1 league opener. Absent from the Irish lineup Saturday will be Don Sepka, Billy Gray, Barry Ashbee and Jack Showers.

Fred Wooster and Barry Forbes will probably share goaltending duties with Jack May, Norm Kowalyk, Ed Kowalyk and Ray Beech, working on defence.

Available for forward lines are Ashbee, Rod Kilduff, Keith Lawrence, Toby Wilson, Ron Jay, Bill Munroe, Tom Collett, Jim McNeill, Reg Foster and John Hansen.

Arnie Ferguson, coach of the senior Shamrocks for the past two years, has been appointed to the Inter-City League's refereeing corps. Other referees are Jack Norrthup, Harry Wipper, Sid Greenwood and Earl McDonald.

Ferguson and Wipper are due to officiate at Wednesday's game.

Aaron's Hot 65 Best in Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—Tommy Aaron, an army supply clerk six months ago, built a six-under-par 64 with six birdies Thursday to take a one-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus for the first-round lead in the $50,000 Houston golf classic.

Nicklaus, the masters champion, had a five-under 30 on the front nine but saw a back nine par 35 drop him to a 65. A 12-foot putt on the last green that would have given him a tie with Aaron stopped a foot short.

Amateur Kermit Zarley, U.S. collegiate champion from the University of Houston, also saw his last putt stop short but he took third place with a 33-33-66. Zarley is a native of Spokane.

Jerry Steelsmith, who missed three championships by a total of five strokes last year as a sophomore on the pro tour, finished minutes ahead of Nicklaus with a 31 on the back nine for a four-way tie at 67.

LOWEST SINCE 1951

Aaron finished early and had practically no gallery as he posted a 31 on the front nine and came home in 33 for the classic's lowest round score since Jimmy Clark had a 65 in 1951.

Most of the 18,000 spectators awarded behind Nicklaus and Gary Player, the co-favorites.

Player, with 16 pars and two birdies, had a 34-34—68 for a four-way tie, four strokes off the pace.

Arnold Palmer, the third member of golf's big three, did not enter the classic this year.

Nicklaus' 30 tied a course record set by Walter Burkemo in 1954 and tied by Jackie Burke in 1959, and Palmer in 1960.

Wenger Event Slated Sunday

Ladies division of Gorge Vale Golf Club will hold the annual greensome competition for the Wenger-Basket trophy Sunday. Defending champions are Mrs. M. Cooke and Mrs. E. Bryan.

In the 15th annual Good Friday tourney, Mrs. B. Yardley and Mrs. C. Johnson won low net honors with 68. Mrs. S. Naysmith and Mrs. D. DeGiola were low gross winners with 77.

Sunday's draw:

Outdoorsmen Spent Fat $275,000,000 In 1961

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—The first attempt to put a dollar value on wildlife sports in Canada has revealed that fishermen and hunters spent $275,000,000 in 1961.

Results of an economic survey by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, done at the request of provincial game agencies, were placed before the 27th annual Canadian wildlife conference when it opened a two-day session Thursday.

However, C. H. D. Clarke, chief of the fish and wildlife for the Ontario department of lands and forests, said the report did not give a true picture of hunting and fishing in Ontario.

"We do not want this understatement... to become fact," he said, contending Ontario statistics were far too low.

W. W. Mair, chief of the Canadian Wildlife Service and chairman of the conference, said the report "is the first nationwide assessment of the major activities relating to fishing and hunting and of the money spent in those pursuits."

He also urged consideration of the human values connected with the outdoors.

192,000 IN B.C.

"Consider the pleasure and healthful recreation experienced in just one hour of hunting and fishing, then translate that into the value derived by the people of Canada as indicated in the figures of the report," he said.

"Only then can the true place of fish and wildlife in the Canadian scene be evaluated."

The survey, dealing only with the activities of Canadians 14 years of age or older, was carried out in February of 1962 by enumerators preparing the labor force survey sample for that month.

The report showed that 1,526,000 persons or 12.6 per cent of Canada's population either fished or hunted or did both in 1961. Of these, 1,311,000 persons fished and 791,000 persons hunted.

Ontario with 579,000 had the most sportsmen, followed by the Prairie provinces with 313,000. There were 272,000 fishermen and hunters in Quebec, 192,000 in British Columbia and 170,000 in the Atlantic region.

Sport fishing provided 20,000 days of recreation and hunting 11,000,000 days, the report said. Canadians travelled more than 1,000,000,000 man-miles in private vehicles to fish and hunt.

HIGHLIGHTS

Other highlights of the report:

- Of the $87,000,000 spent by hunters in 1961, each big-game hunter spent an average of $85. Waterfowl hunters spent an average $79, small game hunters $50. Of those who hunted both types of game, the average expenditure was $110.
- More than 60 per cent of all sportsmen hunted or fished within a 100-mile radius of their homes.
- Freshwater fishermen outnumbered saltwater fishermen eight to one.
- Men outnumbered women in both fishing and hunting six to one.
- About 3.7 per cent of hunters spent money on archery equipment and used it on big game, small game and waterfowl.

D. A. Benson of the Bureau of Statistics said the report could be taken as the beginning of setting a true value of wildlife in Canada.

While the survey had its weaknesses—for example relying on mailed reports and not having the enumerators take down the answers at the door—the labor force survey sample "was one of the most reliable methods."

Robinson Trophy To Mrs. Locatelli

Mrs. C. R. Locatelli, carding 87-15—72, topped the monthly medal round and also claimed the Robinson Trophy competition for women of Uplands Golf Club.

Mrs. R. A. Cranston topped "B" Division with 100-25—75, while Mrs. H. A. Shenker led "C" Division scorers with 101-27—74. Runners-up for the Robinson Trophy were Mrs. Lil Thirlwell and Mrs. Shenker.

RENO-DON Fuller, 181, West Jordan, Utah, outplayed Eddie Andrews, 181, Reno, 10.

YOUR MERC DEALER WILL HELP YOU ANGLE FOR A NEW FISHING MOTOR

Your Mercury outboard dealer will arm you with facts about the new Merc fishing motors... information that you may need to convince your wife (or yourself) that you've just got to have one. Maybe your old banger is shearing pins. Mercs have no shear pins. They have a live-rubber safety clutch instead. Maybe you can't troll with your old motor because it idles badly and fouls plugs. Fishing Mercs have tilted powerheads that eliminate fuel "puddling" and fixed-jet carburetors that keep the mixture right. There are lots of good reasons why you should have a new Merc. They start easy. They go through weeds and shallows without heating up. They have full gearshift.

If you don't have an outboard... all the more reason to buy a new Merc. It will take you off the dock and back where the fish are hiding.

VISIT YOUR MERCURY DEALER. There's a good chance that you'll get a new Merc 60... 6 hp, Merc 110... 9.8 hp, or a new Merc 200... 20 hp. MERCs are very light and easy to carry home. Now made in Canada at new low prices.

SOLUTION MONDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — "Nakedness is bad for business..."

Sophia Loren and her husband, Carlos Ponti—amazed that Kim Novak and other glamour girls have been bawling about nude before the movie cameras—say that children will be forbidden to see these pictures.

"And we've got to have the new generations seeing our movies—they're our future audiences," contended Sophia, up in their hotel suite.

"Sophia doesn't need to be naked," Ponti said happily. "She looks good enough with her clothes on. If an actress needs a nude scene, maybe she's not an actress."

"I don't go for it. It's a bad example," Sophia said. "Of course if the director has great taste..."

Ponti waved the idea away. "Real sexy pictures are not commercial," he said. "The Bardot pictures of six, seven years ago, are finished."

"Ceel B. DeMille," Ponti continued, "told me the best formula for pictures. The pictures should be sexy—and religious."

So there you have the secret. A picture with the unlikely title of "The Bishop in the Nudist Camp" would probably do business.

Quent Reynolds celebrated his 61st birthday—but the youngest guy in town is 50-year-old Danny Kaye. Nobody'll believe that this perpetual kid was born in January, 1913. A top Democratic U.S. Senator will try to repeal the JFK-sponsored Expense Account Act that's so ruinous to NY restaurants and amusements... The Liz Taylor-Richard Burton plans to make a Hollywood picture seem to be cooling off... Eddie Foy 3rd proposed marriage to Selma Diamond at Peacock Alley and she asked for a minute to think it over... CBS Prez James Aubrey's beautiful young date at a couple of parties was his daughter, Skylar.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Joan Bennett and John Emery were dining at the Penguin. (Do they have marriage plans?)... Tommy Manville reached 69... Paul Anka talked to Josh Logan about a "Mr. Roberts" film sequel...

Jane Morgan and husband, Larry Stith, go to Greece for the Athens Hilton opening: Jane'll sing for the king and queen... The Robert Swenson came from Sioux Falls, S.D., to see their son Swenson in "Little Me." Papa borrowed his son's dinner jacket and Joey Faye's tux trousers for the show... Bearded Gabby Hayes, cowpoke in 179 westerns, will tour the French champagne country: he's an expert on wines.

A couple of Fords were parked at Toots Shor's—pitcher Whitey Ford and Henry Ford III... Veteran Kansas newspaper editor Bertha Shore—known as "Ima Wash-out"—died... Gymnast Latoria performed 160 consecutive "giant swings" in the circus at the Garden, a new record... If Diann Carroll decides not to do "No Strings" in London, her standby, pretty Vi Velasco, may get the break of gastroenteritis during a four-week period last summer.

B-Bardot's ex-husband, director Roger Vadim, has a new American discovery, model Josephine James; she'll appear with BB in "Please, Not Now."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A local lush boasted he's furnished his apartment in Early French — it turned out he meant 50 cases of old Napoleon brandy.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Sal Cuccinotta recalls he once visited a town so small and dull that the newspaper printed the crossword puzzle on the front page.

REMEMBERED QUOTES: If you want to stay young, associate with the young; and if you want to get old, try to keep up with them. — Anon.

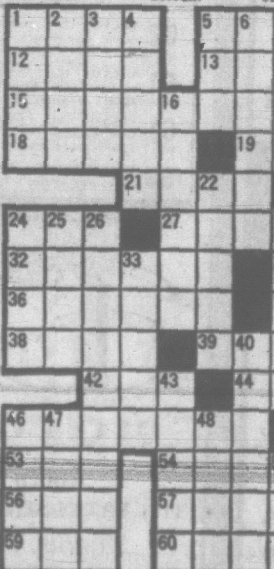

EARL'S PEARLS: Spring, says Bob Orben, is when fishermen get that far-away-lake in their eyes.

Hefty N.Y. Giants' footballer Roosevelt Grier is singing at the International, and a reviewer said of the huge 6-foot-5, 205-lb. guy: "He's pretty good—but even if he wasn't, who'd tell him?"... That's earl, brother.

NO WAITING LIST

Plea Made for Adoptions

More parents must be encouraged to adopt children, Miss Constance D. Holmes, president of the Family and Children's Service and the Fred Landsberg Sunshine Camp, reported at the annual meeting Thursday night in St. Luke's parish hall.

There is no waiting list of adoptive parents in Victoria and although the situation has not reached an acute stage, a greater effort must be made to find homes, she said.

The establishment of a Halfway House as a discharge home for Sevenoaks graduates and more group homes are being considered by the agency.

During the past year the agency provided services to 1,124 families, executive director Gordon R. Wright reported.

Of the 559 children concerned in these family cases, 264 children received temporary non-ward care, 293 received care as wards of the agency and of these 10 were placed for adoption. Of the remaining 285 children most were placed in foster homes, group homes and a few in Sevenoaks.

'PITIFULLY SHORT'

Mr. Wright emphasized that in regard to adolescent children, there are foster homes and boarding homes available for boys but that such homes for girls were in "pitifully short supply." Requests for such homes are constantly being made by the courts and families.

Of the $463,742.79 allocated to the family and children's service, $293,197.83 was spent on the care of children, $9,190.30 on family and preventive work and $161,354.66 on administration and supervision.

During the year the Women's Auxiliary raised $577.85 at the spring raffle held at the Sevenoaks, $224.22 at the annual festival of Christmas decorations in the Empress Hotel, and $103.81 at a rummage sale.

NOMINATIONS

Report of the nominating committee as read by B. A. Tobin was: honorary president, Mrs. C. D. Schofield; members with one year to serve, W. A. Buchanan, M. H. Collins, J. H. L. Gillis, R. F. G. Green, G. Mylet, W. D. Osborn, B. A. Tobin and John Wade; nominated to complete one year term, Mrs. W. E. Cooper and Rev. G. H. Turpin; members re-nominated for two-year term, Dr. H. Borsman, J. Copping, Miss C. Holmes, Fr. L. MacLellan, G. F. Dunn and M. C. Stewart; new candidates for two-year term, E. E. Chamberlin, Dr. Esme Ford, Miss Olive Heritage and George Holt.

Schoolboy Dies After Being Hit On Head By Ball

OMAHA (AP)—David Bremser, 14, died in hospital Thursday of a head injury suffered when he was struck by a baseball during a school game Wednesday.

David was wearing a plastic helmet when he was sent in as a pinch hitter for his team, but turned from the pitched ball and was struck below the helmet.

It was the first recorded death in 1963 for school baseball. There were five in 1962.

MILESTONE in career of Lauritz Melchior, right, was reached Thursday night as he participated in concert with American Symphony Orchestra, with Leopold Stokowski, left, conducting in Garden City, N.Y., to mark 50th anniversary of singer's debut in opera. (AP Wirephoto.)

Liz's Debut on TV To Draw Record Fee

NEW YORK (UPI)—"The highest fee ever paid a performer to do a single show in the history of television" will go to Elizabeth Taylor for a filmed tour of her favorite spots in London, it was announced Thursday.

Producer Norman Baer of Television Productions of America, Inc., said the actress' television debut would be seen in October by an American network audience. He declined to disclose the amount she would be paid.

"Elizabeth Taylor's London" will be more Elizabeth Taylor than London," Baer said. "She will be playing the role of Elizabeth Taylor—relaxed, warm and witty."

The idea for the movie queen's London tour was suggested, according to Baer, by the White House tour conducted by Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, as well as Princess Grace's television tour of Monaco.

One London friend of Miss Taylor's will not be present on the tour: Richard Burton.

Ex-Detective Played 'Robin Hood'

CALGARY (CP)—A former Scotland Yard detective who "played Robin Hood" with a bank's money today pleaded guilty to theft by conversion of $9,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia here.

William John Perkins, 34, admitted stealing the money by making out fictitious loans between April 15, 1960, and Dec. 31, 1962, the period in which he was employed by the bank. "In effect, my client was playing Robin Hood with the bank money," said defence counsel David Wright.

"The first fictitious account was set up to help his brother-in-law and when the time came to repay this loan, Mr. Perkins was without funds and opened another account to pay off the first," said Mr. Wright.

Perkins, who held the position of consumer lending officer at a southwest Calgary branch of the bank, was remanded to April 25 for sentence.

Mr. Wright said it was "one of the most unusual cases ever to come into court."

Perkins was arrested Wednesday afternoon in the office of an automobile company, where he has been employed as a clerk since he was asked to resign from the bank Dec. 31.

SAIGON (Reuters)—A total of 127 Communist Vietnamese guerrillas were killed in a series of attacks on fortified strategic hamlets in Quang Ngai province Monday and Tuesday, United States military sources said Thursday.

Columbia Differences 'Semantics'

NELSON (CP)—Provincial federal government differences over the international Columbia River treaty may just be "semantics," B.C. Attorney General Bonner said here.

Mr. Bonner, en route to opening ceremonies of the new provincial courthouse in nearby Salmo, said he believed Liberal campaign cries of treaty renegotiation might be an instance of two parties each applying a different term to the same thing.

"What the Liberals call renegotiation," he said, "we would call negotiation." The Liberal demand for renegotiation probably covered points already under or scheduled for negotiation in the existing treaty, he said.

Several outstanding points are to be negotiated once the document is ratified, he said.

CD committee. Helmet-wearing crew consists of Mrs. Sandy Johnson, Mrs. Carol Baxter, Mrs. Marilyn Price and Linda Campbell. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

19 Victoria Women Lead Nation Completing Tough Rescue Course

Nineteen women of "good conscience" mustered out as Canada's first petticoat rescue corps Wednesday at Victoria civil defence headquarters.

They are graduates of the first all-female civil defence rescue course, in which they were certified and congratulated by city CD committee chairman Ald. J. L. W. McLean.

19 AND UP

He presented them with inscribed "sheepskins" and lapel badges and told the women—aged 19 and up—"You have done something of a matter of good conscience to your community."

He said he was impressed that young ladies should take the course.

"I said impressed, not surprised, because there are few things in this modern day that are not undertaken by women. Whenever disaster strikes, it is those with the training who are of help."

Ald. McLean said city council is conscious of the debt to co-ordinator V. S. Godfrey and his staff for their efforts in civil defence.

"We are sorry that in the course of events and reorganization we are to lose Cmdr. Godfrey in the near future."

'CARRIES ON'

"But the thing that is worth doing carries on," Ald. McLean said.

The co-ordinator's resignation becomes effective at the end of April.

Mr. Godfrey congratulated the class "for the splendid showing you've made" and hoped many would continue in civil defence by taking refresher courses and a first aid course in the fall.

Two five-girl teams demonstrated to guests how an injured person may be lashed into a stretcher to prevent accidental upsetting.

Members of the class are Diana McBratney, Jennie Oudman, Irene Laundry, Linda Campbell, Nora F. Butts, Mrs. Marlene Miles, Mrs. Marlene Schmidt, Mrs. Rhoda M. Johnson, Mrs. Delia Hryciuk, Mrs. Christine Mostowy, Mrs. Margaret Gentry.

Mrs. Joan L. G. Landymore, Mrs. Grace K. McDowall, Mrs. Valerie C. Leir, Mrs. Elizabeth Woodliffe, Mrs. Evelyn Glew, Mrs. Patricia Armstrong, Mrs. Carol Baxter and Mrs. Marilyn Price.

"But the thing that is worth doing carries on," Ald. McLean said.

HAS'N'T SEEN IT

He said he never has seen the new planet but knows it is six light years distant from the earth, orbiting around Barnard's star, the second nearest star to earth. The new planet is called Barnard's Star B.

Van de Kamp said astronomers know that many stars have companion objects that revolve around them as they move across the sky. If a star does not have a companion, he said, its track across the sky will be a uniform motion. However, if a companion does exist, astrometric observations will indicate that the path of the star wobbles from its expected course, said the astronomer.

The amount of the wobble is a measure of the mass unseen companion, said Van de Kamp.

A $2,700,000 project to enlarge the Perth, Australia, airport to international jet standards was completed in 1962.

Dr. Peter van de Kamp, director of the Sproul Observatory and professor of astronomy at Swarthmore College, said that in mass this new planet all but closes the gap between two stars of low mass and Jupiter, the solar system's largest planetary mass.

Man has identified nine planets in the solar system including earth. He has observed all of them with the naked eye or through telescopes.

Van de Kamp made his report at the meeting of the American Astronomical Society at the Kitt Peak National Observatory and the University of Arizona.

Lawn-Boy's new Finger-Tip Start makes a best-seller even better

If you can lift a finger you can start the new 1963 Lawn-Boy. Lawn-Boy engineers have designed a new ignition system and geared starter that reduces starting effort an incredible 94%. Finger-Tip start is just one of many ways the new Lawn-Boy gives you your money's worth—here are some others:

Lightweight. Lawn-Boy is easier to push than conventional steel power mowers because Lawn-Boy is made of magnesium, a metal lighter than steel. It is unusually tough and is rust proof, too.

Unique Grasscatcher. Lawn-Boy's Chute & Bag Grasscatcher does your raking for you; vacuum cleans as you cut, doesn't clog; holds a bushful; detaches and empties in seconds.

Spring Steel Blades. Lawn-Boy cuts best because the blades are made of case-hardened spring steel—the same as quality barber shears are made of. Each blade has Lawn-Boy's exclusive blade stiffener which keeps the blade level to cut level.

Quietness. Lawn-Boy's muffler is the largest on any mower... therefore it's the quietest mower on the market.

2-Year Warranty. 24 months against defective parts and workmanship. Let your Lawn-Boy dealer show you the new Lawn-Boy soon, see for yourself why it's Canada's best-selling power mower. 5 models to choose from.

Centenary Plans Spotlight Woes

By BERNARD DUFRESNE

MONTREAL (CP) — Private planners of celebrations to mark Canada's centenary in 1967 appear concerned with problems of bilingualism and with the pressures that threaten Confederation.

This became evident at Thursday's opening of the Canadian Centenary Council's annual meeting, grouping 300 representatives from various associations and businesses interested in planning special celebrations for 1967.

Dr. Norman A. MacKenzie, council president, warned that if any province decides to separate from Confederation "all of us, I am certain, would be the poorer for it."

"One result of this separation, I feel sure, would be the early merging of most of English Canada with the United States."

He said the "problem of Confederation in Eastern Canada may appear to be a problem in French-English relations, but in British Columbia—the attractive United States is only 19 miles from Vancouver."

Ex-City Woman Dies Suddenly In Los Angeles

Funeral services will be held Monday at Los Angeles, Calif., for Mrs. A. (Eileen) Valentine, formerly of Victoria, who died suddenly this week.

Born in Victoria, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Johns of this city.

She is survived by her husband; a sister, Miss Gladys Johns, both of Los Angeles, and relatives in Victoria.

The retired president of the University of British Columbia said he does not advocate that B.C. secede from Confederation and join the U.S. But he added: "It will be more difficult to keep young British Columbia separate and apart from the United States than it will be to keep Ontario and Quebec in some kind of union."

UNION NOT DIFFICULT

He said later in an interview there is no feeling of separatism in Canada outside of Quebec, but it would not be too difficult for English-speaking Canada to join the U.S.

Dr. MacKenzie suggested as a major goal to celebrate Confederation that all provincial departments of education be asked to introduce courses in a second language in all primary and secondary schools, and that such courses be carried on through college and university.

He said, however, that there should be no compulsion on students to study a second language.

This topic of bilingualism was taken later in workshops where delegates discussed various ways whereby more Canadians could be interested in learning a second language.

Some suggestions: University-approved courses on CBC radio and television which would earn credits for those passing examinations; a half-page of news in the "second" language in either French or English newspapers; exchange programs of French and English teachers between the various provinces.

Army Experts Blast Alberta Ice Jam

WHITECOURT, Alta. (CP) — An army demolition expert began blasting a channel through the lower lip of an ice jam early today and planned later to attack the head of an obstruction which clogged the mouth of the McLeod River and flooded this community.

Lieut. Robert Selchanko, of the Royal Engineers, Lethbridge, began blasting at 6 a.m. He expected to begin work on the main jam early in the afternoon.

The army Thursday moved one ton of dynamite to the jam, situated where the McLeod flows into the Athabasca River.

Lieut. Selchanko, a member of the army Alberta area instructional staff, was assisted by Maj. R. R. Buckley, commander of No. 13 Works Command, Royal Canadian Engineers, and 15 members of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. The army was called in by L. C. Halmrast, minister in charge of Alberta emergency measures, when reports indicated the jam would not clear away.

About 25 families were evacuated after their homes were flooded and the icy water undermined sections of the CNR line through the town, 110 miles northwest of Edmonton. Work crews dumped tons of sand and heavy shale along the railway road bed, but reports indicated the Windfall sulphur plant, a huge recently-completed complex outside the town, would be without rail service at least three days.

Total industrial output in Yugoslavia rose 7 per cent in 1961, compared with 15 per cent in 1960.

PROMINENT labor official Alf Toone "made history" here Thursday when he was inducted as member of Rotary Club, which brings together businessmen in variety of classifications. Introducer Hugh Stephen said Alderman Toone "displayed considerable courage" in accepting bid to join the organization, which he said was interested in "world brotherhood and not concerned with race, creed, class or station." Stephen also praised Toone's contribution to local community projects.

Gunboats Seized

SAIGON (AP) — Neighboring Cambodia grabbed two South Vietnamese river gunboats which inadvertently strayed into that neutralist nation while seeking Communist guerrillas, military sources said Thursday. The South Vietnamese government has asked Cambodia to send the two heavily armed ships back.

4,000 to Take Part in 1,200-Entry Music Festival

When the 1963 Greater Victoria Music Festival opens on Monday with piano and vocal solo competitions, two crowded weeks will lie before a number of festival officials, more than 1,200 entrants and a team of seven adjudicators.

By the time the festival ends with the schools' honor performance on May 3, approximately 4,000 persons will have been involved in one way and another, not counting audiences.

Sessions will occupy around nine hours most days (there are no events scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, April 27 and 28). They begin at 9 a.m. and continue through the afternoon with special event programs taking place each evening.

Among the adjudicators, the two who come from the greatest distance and are probably the most distinguished are Guy Johnson for piano and Sydney Northcote vocal and choral.

Mr. Johnson is a Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music, London, England, and he is one of the most distinguished and sought after professors of pianoforte at the Royal Academy.

Distinction came to him first when he gained an open scholarship to the Royal Academy, where he studied orchestral and choral conducting under Sir Henry Wood and piano with the renowned Tobias Matthay, at whose school in London he taught from 1938.

Later he went to Paris, where he studied under the great French pianist, Alfred Cortot.

He is external examiner in piano to the Royal Scottish and Royal Irish Academies of Music and has travelled far and wide as an examiner for the Associated Board of the Royal Schools.

Dr. Northcote, since 1940, has been national music adviser to the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust.

He has judged at all the leading festivals in the country, including Llangollen International Eisteddfod and the Gaelic Mod, and has also judged at festivals in the West Indies and in Hong Kong.

As the author, editor and compiler of song collections and books on vocal music, his credits are long.

In collaboration with Dr. Herbert Wiseman, he is responsible for the Clarendon Class Singing Course, Clarendon Folk Song Books, Clarendon Books of Christmas Carols and so forth.

He is a contributor to Grove's Dictionary of Music, Collier's Encyclopedia (U.S.A.) and various musical journals.

Among the present posts held by Dr. Northcote are chairmanships of the Intimate Opera Society, Carl Rosa Opera Trust, British Federation of Festivals and the Croydon Music Festival.

Programs covering the complete festival are now available at city music stores, also nominally priced season tickets admitting the holder to any and all sessions, including the vocal and piano championship concert and honor performance on Friday, April 26.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 19, 1963—PAGE 17

Monte Roberts

I am not much of a fisherman.

One of the reasons I am not much of a fisherman is, I seldom go fishing.

One of the reasons I seldom go fishing is, I am afraid if I went fishing I might catch a fish.

And if I caught a fish, I would be duty bound to yard him (her?) into the boat.

Yarding a fish into a boat is hard work.

I do not like hard work.

Where was I? Oh, yes, despite the fact I am not much of a fisherman, I cannot help but be intrigued by what is going on in a fish hatchery in South Carolina.

What is going on in this fish hatchery is an educational course teaching fish how not to be caught.

The circumstances, according to Sports Illustrated magazine, are these:

Fish hatcheries are in business to stock streams and lakes and such with fish, so that sports fishermen can sally forth at the break of day and catch fish.

But sports fishermen have been complaining because the fish raised in hatcheries do not live long enough to become big enough to please the sports fishermen.

The reason for this, hatchery-raised fish are accustomed to eating three square meals a day, at least. And when they are turned loose in what is to be their native element, they do not know the difference between a hook lurking behind a lure, and a free meal.

So what are the hatchery people in South Carolina doing about this?

They are instituting a training course to wise up potential trophies so they'll live long enough to become big enough, etc.

The hatchery people do this by fishing at the hatchery with fly rods and barbless hook lures.

At first the innocent little fishes bit at every lure in sight, but after being banged around on the end of a line for a while they began to smarten up.

Before the products of this particular hatchery were placed in public waters, they barely spare a sneer for lures at the end of a line.

As I understand it, all the thanks the hatchery people are getting from fishermen is the back of the hand. The fishermen are beefing because the fish are living long enough to grow big enough, etc., but won't be caught.

St. Joseph's Hospital building fund campaign is ended but contributions are still being received.

The latest is a contribution of $540 made Thursday by Victoria and Oak Bay Firefighters Local 730. The campaign target of $350,000 has now been exceeded by about $2,000.

The extra donations are being put in a development fund that will be used to improve existing facilities at the hospital.

The presentation of the firemen's contribution was made by Alf Adamson, Dan O'Connell and W. R. Gosse.

The Victoria Seventh-Day Adventist Church at Vancouver and Pandora will present a choir program in narrative and verse at 3:30 p.m. Saturday. Directed by Mrs. A. V. Piper, the theme will be "God So Loved the World."

Old Contemplatives Association will hold its April meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at Trafalgar Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, 1417 Broad Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pearson will present the tape, "The Riddle of Life and Death," at a public meeting of Besant Society Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at 732 Cormorant Street.

2 Hurt In 5-Car Collision

A car driven by an elderly man swung wildly out of control through the Douglas-Belleville intersection shortly after noon and hit four other cars.

It jumped the curb and came to rest on the lawn of Thunderbird Park.

Two persons were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital but were not believed seriously injured.

The car, driven by Nick Addams, 274 Beach Drive, was proceeding south on Douglas when, he said, it stuck in gear.

It sideswiped a parked car on Douglas, and continued south towards Belleville. To avoid a line of cars stopped in front of him at the signal lights, Mr. Addams swung over to the wrong side of the road.

His car bounced off an approaching vehicle, driven by Trudy Durkin.

Mr. Addams' car then hit and badly damaged the rear of a small English car, which in turn was slammed into another small car.

Still going, Mr. Addams' car crossed the intersection and barely missed two steel poles before stopping upright on the park grass.

Mr. Addams suffered only superficial cuts on the face during the harrowing ride.

A traffic jam developed at the intersection following the collision, fed by the lunch-hour rush of civil servants.

A crowd of pedestrians milled about, adding to the confusion.

A report on high-rise apartments by Capital Region Planning Board today implied Saanich council should go slow in allowing high-rise buildings in residential areas.

The report surveyed the current high-rise situation in Greater Victoria, predicted that more would be built but at a slower rate in the immediate future and urged zoning regulations to concentrate them in James Bay, selected sections of Oak Bay and at West Bay in Esquimalt.

Significantly, the report did not recommend any high-rise development in Saanich at the present time.

Also significant, perhaps, was the timing of the report's release—Saanich council is scheduled to make up its mind Monday night about controversial high-rise zoning for the Gordon Head-Cadboro Bay area.

(An indication this may be rejected came in a statement by Saanich Coun. Hugh Curtis—who previously favored the high-rise zoning—that he would propose a "freeze" on all rezoning applications in the university campus area until a master plan is prepared.)

Three general areas appear most suitable for high-rise development—James Bay, selected areas in Oak Bay and a small area near the Esquimalt-Victoria boundary at West Bay," the CRPB report concluded.

Other possible high-rise areas in the region should be considered on their merit but only rezoned if there is no disturbance of surrounding residences.

(More than 1,000 Saanich residents in the proposed high-rise zone have vehemently opposed the application.)

In another part of the report, the CRPB said: "There is no high-rise potential at the present time in most of Saanich, or in Central Saanich or Sidney."

It added that if Saanich were to rezone property for high-rise, it should be in the more central and densely populated areas of the municipality rather than the suburban areas.

The report said a survey of construction shows the past three years have been "boom years in apartment construction"—particularly high-rise buildings.

Four high-rise blocks in Victoria and two in Oak Bay will provide 420 suites. Another 245 suites will be provided in high-rise buildings now on the drawing boards.

Immediate effect will be an over-supply of good apartment suites—lowering rents generally and forcing a temporary slowdown in construction, the report predicted.

But the slack will soon be taken up and high-rise apartments will become an increasingly important factor in the Greater Victoria area, producing large additional chunks of tax revenue.

"The increasing appeal of apartment living, especially in high-rise units, has in part resulted from dissatisfaction with the single family dwelling," the report said.

"For retirement, the apartment has become what are to some the disadvantages of a detached home—garden maintenance, ownership responsibility, isolation and tied-up capital.

"Apartment living, especially among higher income groups, has become more fashionable."

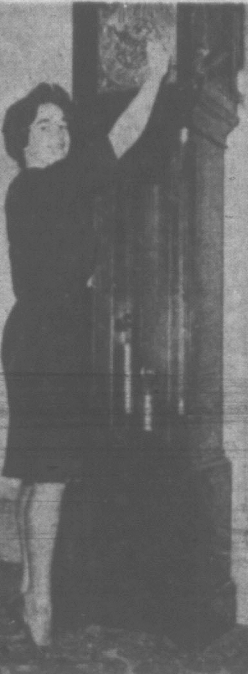

The report said more than 500 retired persons come to this area to live every year and this potential apartment market is swelled by single persons, childless families and families with older teenagers.

Coun. Curtis, in proposing a moratorium on rezoning, said it would be foolish to expect that the Gordon Head-Cadboro Bay area—almost two-thirds the size of Oak Bay—will remain an exclusively single family district as it develops.

But before changes are made, a thorough study and plan should be prepared.

"I am prepared to suggest at the first opportunity Saanich council instruct our municipal planner to give highest priority to preparation of an official university district plan," Coun. Curtis said.

"Council will otherwise be faced with a steadily increasing number of applications for spot rezoning and cannot intelligently deal with each one if no thought is given to the general requirements of the area."

IT'S ALMOST the eleventh hour for anyone who wants to enter the Miss Victoria contest as Flora Lowe, the latest entrant, here points out. The 19-year-old Empress Hotel clerk, who lives at 62 Logan Ave., is a Scottish dancer and former Bluebird Majorette. Closing date for entries is next Monday. Full details may be obtained by contacting either Doug Webb at 383-0744 or 477-4342 or Win Garcia at 382-6111, local 2564, or 383-1484.

Estimated at better than $2,000,000, the project calls for construction of a 12-storey building followed later by a 16-storey structure using the same entrance.

The site was purchased from the city by Blake Construction of Vancouver for $35,000 almost two years ago despite protests from some nearby residents and one alderman's claim that the property was worth more than $100,000.

Architectural drawings for the first phase of a controversial twin-tower high-rise apartment near the Rockland water tower are well under way.

City planning officer Rod Clark today said he understood the plans should be completed by summer, paving the way for a construction start.

He had been living in the house alone with their bodies until Saanich police discovered them at about 12:30 p.m. the following Wednesday.

The youth already has been committed to Esquimalt.

The murder was discovered after George Hess, manager of the Colony Steak House, where Mrs. Bickford was a waitress, had become alarmed at her failing to report for work two days in a row.

He testified he had tried to reach his employee by phone when she did not come to work Monday night. He could get no answer at her house.

"She was a very conscientious worker; she would have told me if anything was wrong," he told a coroner's jury in Saanich courtroom today.

DEAD SILENT

When she did not turn up Tuesday night either, he went to the house and tried to raise somebody by ringing and knocking at both front and back doors.

"It was dead silent," he said. Mr. Hess testified he saw what looked like laundry bags through a window, and notified police.

Saanich deputy chief John Hamilton and Cpl. Leslie Ledsen also tried to get in and finally broke in through a basement window.

Cpl. Ledsen testified he went through the basement and upstairs where he let the deputy in through the back door.

UNDER A SHEET

"I could only get the kitchen door open with difficulty," deputy Hamilton said. "I could see what appeared to be a body lying face down under a sheet lying against the door."

This was Mrs. Bickford. She had been shot four times—once through the chest, and three times in the head.

In a hallway leading to bedrooms, Mr. Bickford was lying on his back also under a sheet.

After observing the bodies and notifying the coroner, the officers noticed the electric kettle was steaming and that a cup contained instant coffee powder.

What appeared to be a confession lay on the counter beside the phone.

"I tried to read part of this, and drew the conclusion that someone was still in the house or had just left prior to our arrival," Cpl. Ledsen said.

On the kitchen floor were a neat row of weapons: a sheath knife, a home-made knife, a razor, a pair of scissors, a bow and arrows, two rifles, and a box of cartridges.

"MURDER WEAPON"

All were tagged "unused" except for a .22 single shot rifle which bore the inscription "murder weapon."

The officers began a more thorough search of the house. Deputy Hamilton said he stepped over the body of Mr. Bickford and opened the door to a bedroom on the east side of the house.

Here he found another sheet-covered body.

"But I could see movement."

"I called to Cpl. Ledsen. 'Here's another one, and it's still alive,' then I went and phoned for an ambulance," the deputy testified.

"I went into the bedroom and pulled back the sheet," Cpl. Ledsen told the jury.

"I found a young boy lying there with his head facing the bed. I asked him if he was all right."

"He turned his head and looked up at the ceiling."

"He replied 'I'm O.K.'," the corporal testified.

Argued With Father Over Young Friend

It was revealed in a coroner's inquest today that George and Helen Bickford, found dead in their house, Feb. 13, were shot to death two days earlier by their 16-year-old son Ronald.

The boy wrote a "sworn testament" for police in which he described how and why he shot his parents shortly before 9 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 11, in their house at 3625 Melcroft.

He had shot his father during an argument over his feelings towards a six-year-old girl.

He had shot his mother while she was phoning for police.

He had been living in the house alone with their bodies until Saanich police discovered them at about 12:30 p.m. the following Wednesday.

Controls Here On Pesticides Said Adequate

Dangerous pesticides are under adequate control in B.C., an agriculture department spokesman said today.

Chester L. Neilson, provincial entomologist said he thought it unlikely that B.C. would follow Manitoba's lead in adopting new controls.

The Manitoba Legislature this week gave second reading to a bill to control and regulate distribution and use of chemicals used in suppressing insects.

Mr. Neilson said the amount of dangerous chemicals used in this province is a small fraction of the amounts used on the prairies.

REGULATED

B.C., like every province in Canada, has its pesticide use regulated and inspected by federal government food and drug bureau experts. A branch of office is located in Vancouver.

Tests are made of various home-grown foods and tolerances for trace of poisonous substances are set. If traces greater than 1/100th part of a dangerous amount are detected, action is immediately taken to reduce the pesticide use, Mr. Neilson said.

For instance, when federal lab tests recently showed a slight increase over the accepted tolerance of a poison known as Aldrin, in potato samples, provincial authorities were advised.

BULLETINS ISSUED

Bulletins have gone out this month to all district agriculturists suggesting that all potato growers reduce their use of soil insecticides wherever possible.

"Do not treat soil for tuber flea beetle control with Aldrin, Dieldrin or Chlordane during 19

Feeling Hazy In the Head? Eat Plenty of Brain Food

By PENNY SAVER

Fish, commonly referred to as 'brain food', is rich in niacin and riboflavin—two vitamins missing in many diets.

Fish is considered an easily digested food and is frequently found listed on low calorie diets. Among those which are considered lean are cod, sole, smelts and all shell fish. High in fat are Alaska, black cod, eels, herring, salmon, sardines, lake trout and tuna.

In between are halibut and white fish, both considered average in fat content.

Living on the coast, where we have a good supply of fresh and salt water fish, we should take advantage of the opportunity to get our quota of brain food—and most of us could use it.

This week the first large catch of halibut from the northern waters arrived in town, so be sure to put halibut steaks on your weekend menu.

How about trying halibut steaks with stuffing. Ingredients for stuffing are 1/4 cup chopped onion, 1/4 cup diced celery, 1/4 cup butter or other fat, 1/2 tsp salt, 1/2 tsp seasoning—suggested are savory, thyme, sage, tarragon, mint or poultry seasoning, two cups bread crumbs and one chopped tomato.

Sprinkle the steaks with salt. Cook onion and celery in fat until tender, add salt and seasoning, toss lightly with bread crumbs and add tomato.

Place one steak in a greased baking dish, heap with stuffing and top with second steak. Brush with melted butter and cook.

All fish should be cooked in an oven 450 to 500 degrees to retain the delicate juices as fish toughens and dries out if over-cooked. Fresh fish is cooked 10 minutes for every inch and 20 minutes if frozen.

To make the most of the hot oven serve baked potatoes and a casserole of carrots with your fish and salad. When the dinner is cooked pop some muffins in the oven for tomorrow's breakfast and finish up by putting in some sliced white bread, which if you leave in over night will be crisp melba toast for the next day's lunch served with soup and cheese.

By the way, if you would like to know where to get fresh halibut at 65 cents a pound, phone Penny at 382-3131.

Follow These Easy Steps For Sewing Straight Seam

"Dear Eunice,

"Several weeks ago you told us how to give a tapered effect to our straight skirts by stitching the side seams straight with the grain-line from the hips to the hem. I have tried this, but I can't get a straight seam where the skirt is shaped out at the hem. Is there an easy way to sew this straight seam?"

Mrs. R. W.

Dear Mrs. R. W.:

First, remember that I mentioned stitching the seam straight from the hipline to the hem. When you fit yourself, be sure there is a minimum of 2 inches extra fabric at the hips to assure proper ease.

To be sure the grain-line is perfect, measure from the centre front to the side seam at the widest part of the hips (a), after the skirt has been properly fitted. This measurement can be marked the same distance in several places on the lower skirt, see (b) and (c). Do the same with the skirt back (this measurement will not be the same as the front). Stitch the lower part of your skirt on these new marks and it should hang perfect if you have been accurate.

Seaman-Kerridge Vows

Rev. Colin Campbell officiated at the evening ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church which united in marriage Miss Cecelia Anne Kerridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence I. Kerridge, 1180 Esquimalt Road, and Dale Rockney Seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Seaman, of Leavenworth, Wash.

Easter lilies and spring flowers decorated the church. Soloist, Mrs. B. Bell, sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a classic gown of white peau de soie styled with sweetheart neckline and elbow-length sleeves trimmed with dainty bows. Skirt featured a straight front panel and a bustle at the back extending to a chapel train.

She carried a bouquet of white gardenias, carnations and trailing ivy.

Matron of honor, Mrs. B. Campbell, and bridesmaid, Miss Judy Rigg, wore identical cally styled gowns of corned-rose blue organza over taffeta with matching bows in their hair. Complementing their gowns they carried colonial bouquets of bachelor buttons.

Flower girl, Laurie Seaman, wore a pale blue organza over taffeta frock, and bachelor buttons were in her colonial bouquet and headpiece.

Brooke Van Wyck was best man, and ushers were Ralph McKenzie, Timothy Seaman and David Kerridge. Donald Smythe proposed the toast to the bride at the reception in the Tally Ho Restaurant. The wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, was cut with an RCN sword belonging to the bride's father.

For a going-away outfit the bride wore a white hat, toning green accessories and a white rose corsage.

Summer formal evenings deserve dramatic fashions. Shown at the annual fashion show of the men's clothing manufacturers association of Ontario was black and white seersucker dinner jacket, styled with a shawl collar and worn with black mohair trousers. The lady wears grey—a floor-length wool gown with silver braid trimming the bell skirt. Her evening headpiece is a silver fox pom-pom with tulle ties. The show previewed summer, fall and crisscross fashions for men. (Photo by Peter of Holland, Toronto.)

DEAR ABBY

She Hates Organ Grinder!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I love organ music, but if that piano player they have playing the organ at my church doesn't take some organ lessons pretty soon I am going to quit going to church. It is punishment to listen to. She brags that she has never had an organ lesson in her life. Believe me, she didn't have to say so. Anyone who knows organ music could tell it.

GRITTING MY TEETH

DEAR GRITTING: Call your clergyman and suggest that he consider getting an organist—or educating the piano player.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter and her husband are planning a trip to Europe. We offered to keep their two pre-school children during their six-week trip, and they had the nerve to ask us to keep their dog! I don't care for dogs and neither does my husband. My daughter says it will spoil her trip if they have to put the dog in a kennel. She's afraid he might be mistreated or maybe die of homesickness. Are we wrong in refusing to keep him? Or are they wrong in insisting?

NO DOGS

DEAR NO: It is cruel to force an animal on people who dislike animals. The dog deserves better. Explain this to your daughter. Don't let her talk you into anything or it shouldn't happen to a dog.

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrific crush on my family doctor. I am a happily married young woman with children and it annoys me to have this doctor on my mind all day. I told my husband about it and even offered to change doctors, but he said it wouldn't do any good because I'd only develop a crush on the next one. And, besides, he says every woman is in love with her doctor. Is that true? I know my doctor doesn't feel anything special toward me, but that doesn't change my feelings toward him. Any suggestions?

MRS. X.

DEAR MRS. X: Every woman is NOT "in love" with her doctor. Your feelings of gratitude, admiration and respect are confused with romantic love. Analyze your emotions and recognize them for what they are or your doctor will never be able to get a history of your normal blood pressure, pulse and heartbeat.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CAL: Buy a compass with a mirror on the back, so when you look in the mirror you can see who's lost.

Reverse Process! Rouge Emphasizes Where Placed

Q. "I am all mixed up about how to apply rouge. I have a very short, wide face and someone told me to place the rouge at the outside near the temples. I look better without any coloring than this way. What is wrong?"

A. All that's wrong here is that you are simply making-up backwards! Rouge emphasizes the spot in which you place it and therefore, when you put it far away from the nose, it does make the face look wider. If you place the rouge close to your nose, it will give a slimming effect.

Q. "What about a beauty angle? Can I have my husband make one for me?"
A. A beauty angle is simply itself to make. Get a board wide enough to lie on, from 18 to 22 inches high at one end. You might paint it to match your bedroom or sleeping porch if you so desire. I don't need to tell you that you lie with your head at the low end and your feet at the high end.

Q. "If I eat some fresh fruit each day, do I need to consume a variety of it? If I eat an orange or an apple or some grapes, isn't that enough?"
A. You are much better off with one fresh fruit than with none at all, but by all means employ a variety. The greater the variety, the better for you. You should always have orange juice or a couple of oranges, unless you prefer tomato juice, because of the high vitamin C content.

Vitamin contents are concentrated in the different fruits in varying ratios and because of this, some are better for one vitamin and some for others. During the season when there is a great variety, try to build up variety in the fruit you eat—for health's sake.

Q. "I read in bed a lot and I am sure that this is giving me heavy lines on my neck. I like to read in bed. Should I give this up or what can I do about it?"

A. Get a bedrest—there are all kinds—and use that when reading.

Q. "Does bleaching with peroxide tend to make more hair grow?"

A. No.

Q. "Last winter I gained a lot of weight but I have lost it except for my neck and face. How can I reduce here?"

A. There is no way to reduce the face except through a general loss of weight. The face is usually one of the first spots to show a loss of pounds.

Q. "I would like an exercise for my legs. I have no special figure fault but do want to stir up circulation."

A. Stand erect, placing your hands on your hips. Bend the left knee and step back with the right foot, reaching as far back as comfortable, right leg straight. Straighten your left leg and return right foot to place. This time bend your right knee and step back with your left foot, reaching as far back as you can and keeping your left leg straight.

At Wedding

The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. North, came from Moose Jaw to attend the wedding of Gloria Evelyn Hawkins and Francis Raymond Michell, last Monday in St. Mark's Anglican Church. Mr. and Mrs. F. Pearce of Vancouver were also among the guests.

Warns 'Striking Power Must Be Maintained'

The free world has no choice but to keep pace with the terrible powers of destruction that the Communists have if it is to maintain human freedom and man's individuality.

Nik Cavell, a former Canadian High Commissioner to Ceylon, was blunt in this assertion when speaking at Thursday afternoon's meeting of the Women's Canadian Club in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Kirk Hall.

CLOSE THREAT

He cited the "Cuban affair" as an example. "Russia isn't that fond of the Cubans. They took the opportunity of moving in forces so as to be in a position to threaten the United States and Canada."

China's invasion of Indian territory was given as another example. "They (Chinese Communists) saw the strides that India was taking with help through the aid programs and invaded. Now, India has to turn from developing her industries and build up her fighting forces, so delaying her economic development."

Speaking on "Asia and the Western Dilemma," Mr. Cavell stressed need for China's entry into the United Nations. "There are 700,000,000 people living in dangerous isolation in China. We must get her into the United Nations so as to maintain some control over her."

Describing it as "vital and terribly important," that some form of world planning be instigated in order to administer aid to the newly-emerged countries, Mr. Cavell advised:

ORGANIZED PLAN

"The United Nations or someone must set up a world board and do it soon. I am in favor of giving through direct aid rather than loans."

Reason for this recommendation was, "Most of these countries have a bare subsistence level with their people earning an average of $60 a year compared to the Canadian average of $2,500."

"These countries will never be able to obtain satisfactory self government until they have economic stability. With their powers to tax so limited they are simply not in a position to pay for aid under the loan system, even though the rates are very small."

This aid, he continued, must be aimed at getting a good proportion of the Asian people off the land. At present, 80 per cent of them are in agriculture and the land just can't support them.

Mr. Cavell elaborated, "Small, village industries must be set up if they are to advance and before this is done some means of power to run these industries must be installed."

The speaker criticized tendency of Western countries to give aid by "throwing things they don't need into the program. It's very little use sending shipments of wheat to a predominantly rice-eating country."

Communist aid, he reported, was aimed at obtaining popularity and not always helpful. "They built good motor roads in Afghanistan where very few people can afford cars, a steel mill in Ceylon which will have to find foreign

Wears Heirloom Necklace Of Her Great-Grandmother

An heirloom necklace of gold leaf design, encrusted with dainty culture pearls, which had belonged to the bride's great-grandmother was worn by Miss Sheila Elizabeth Kitley when she exchanged vows with Merton James Simpson in a recent ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk tulle, feta embossed with embroidered Alencon lace appliques and dainty pearl drops which formed a design on the front panel of the full skirt which extended into a chapel train. Basque bodice featured scooped neckline and lily point sleeves. Her shoulder-length bouffant veil puffed from a single taffeta rose and white gardenias and pink Rapture roses were in her bouquet.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Kitley, 3575 Elliston Avenue and Mrs. E. M. Simpson, 889 Cloverdale Avenue and the late E. M. Simpson.

Bouquets of spring flowers decorated the church and white satin flowers marked guests.

markets because the Ceylonese can't use the steel and a stadium in another country where industry would have been more to the point."

"Credit for the collapse of the colonial system," he continued, "is continually being claimed by the communists."

"They had no hand in it. I would say rather it was Thomas Jefferson's Declaration of Independence that is responsible. Everywhere I've been in Asia I've heard his words quoted."

UNITY NEEDED

Turning to Canada, he warned, "In order to play our part we must be strong in ourselves. Signs of disunity in recent months must be obliterated and we must go back to the unity we once had."

"It is essential that we have a well-educated and informed public. To obtain this it's vital that we have magazines of Canadian, not American, opinion."

Speaker was introduced by Mrs. F. M. Corbett and thanked by Mrs. H. L. Smith.

Mr. Cavell spoke on the same subject at today's luncheon meeting of the Men's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel.

pews. Canon George Biddle officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Organist was Kenneth Ansell.

Matron of honor, Mrs. W. G. Richmond, bridesmatron, Mrs. Robert Burke and bridesmaid, Miss Marilyn Watt, wore gowns of turquoise peau de soie with matching short jackets. Veiling skirted self-fabric pill boxes and they wore single strands of pearls, gifts of the bride. White feathered carnations and pink Rapture roses were in their bouquets.

Flower girl, Miss Rosemary Morris, wore a white organza frock and circlets of feathered carnations in her hair. She carried a nosegay of white carnations centered with a pink rose.

Robert J. Smith was best man and ushers were Robert Campbell and Hugh Simpson. Reception was held in Chez Marcel where Ted Sinclair proposed the toast.

Leaving for a honeymoon in southern California, the bride wore an aquamarine two-piece wool suit, flowered hat, muskrat jacket, black patent leather accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Attendants in Pink For Wedding

Identical dresses of nylon sheer taffeta in flamingo coral tones, worn by four senior attendants, made a perfect foil for the elegant floor-length wedding gown of silk sheer worn by Gloria Evelyn Hawkins for her marriage last Monday.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hawkins, 4366 Raymond Street, exchanged vows with Francis Raymond Michell, son of Mr. Thomas Michell, 3015 Island View Road, and the late Mrs. Michell, in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Canon R. Willis officiated and the bride was given in marriage by her father. White lilies, roses and daffodils decorated the church.

The bride's gown was styled with full billowy skirt that extended from a basque bodice with scooped neckline and lily point sleeves. A tulle of seed pearls and opalescent crystals held silk embroidered illusion net veil. The bouquet was Tropicana roses and white gardenias.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Sharon Donald and the bridesmaids, Miss Linda Hawkins, Miss Edna Hawkins and Miss Yvonne Michell. They carried white carnations.

Flower girls Terry Lorraine Hawkins and Lauren Patterson were dressed alike in white nylon embroidered in blue roses over white taffeta with matching blue sashes. They carried baskets of white carnations and Tropicana roses and wore white carnations in their hair.

Wilmer Michell was best man, the ushers were Vern Michell, Dave Johnston and Dave Greenway and the ring bearers, Master Tommy Michell and Master Terry Michell.

A reception was held in the Colony Motel Cavalier Room where William Ruby, the bride's uncle, proposed the toast.

Honeymoon is being spent on a motoring trip in the northwest States and in British Columbia. The bride left in a wool boucle suit in new vanilla ice tone with taupe and pink accessories, and wearing a pink carnation corsage.

Lorimer-Cushing Ceremony

Cadboro Bay United Church was the setting for the recent wedding of Barbara June Cushing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cushing, 4032 Palmetto Place, and Darrell Duncan Lorimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Lorimer, 452 Constance Avenue.

Rev. David Wilson officiated and Earl Sheppard sang "Bless This House" during signing of the register.

The bride's gown of white silk organza over taffeta was styled with full-length bouffant skirt and a bodice trimmed at the neckline and waist with applied flowers centered with seed pearls. Her silk illusion net veil was held with a small pearl crown. Jewelry was a pearl and amethyst pendant made by her grandfather, and pearl earrings, a gift of the groom. Gardenias and white feathered carnations and ivy leaves were in her bouquet.

Short dresses of pale green silk organza over taffeta were worn by the maid of honor, Miss Theresa Cushing; the bridesmatron, Mrs. Ann Dyck, and the bridesmaid, Miss Carolyn Bowen. They carried pink carnations and ivy leaves and wore circlets of carnations and ivy in their hair.

John Kendrew was best man and Allan Lorimer and John Devlin the ushers.

The reception was held in the Olde England Inn, where the bride's uncle, Frank Cushing, proposed the toast.

The honeymoon was spent in Seattle. For travelling the bride wore a white wool tweed suit with matching jersey blouse, raspberry pink model-hat and gloves and black patent leather purse and shoes. Her corsage was of roses.

The couple will live at 831 Dunsmuir Street.

Accuracy, Not Speed Stressed in Schooling

In this day and age when more and more information is being fed into data processing machines, accuracy rather than speed is emphasized in commercial courses, Mrs. L. A. Watson, commerce teacher at Victoria High School, told members and their bosses at the 15th annual bosses' breakfast of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club of Victoria, Thursday morning in King Arthur's Round Table.

Speaking on "Curriculum for College Candidates," Mrs. Watson outlined courses given to commercial students. She added that as well as academic courses, there is an attempt to provide practical experience as possible. Before each student graduates there are three main points that are emphasized—first, to accept authority; secondly, that a job is whatever is required of them, and thirdly, the importance of diplomacy and tolerance.

Speaker was introduced by Kay Price and thanked by Bessie Ward.

In keeping with the theme, "C.W.B.C. in '63—our college of Credit Knowledge," club executives and committee chairmen wore black mortar boards with tassels in club colors of blue and gold. Programs resembled text books and favors were pens, pencils and rulers.

ARBUTUS BAY WATERFRONT

We are privileged to offer the type of property which seldom comes on the market. Within two acres of treed seclusion, 15 minutes' drive from downtown Victoria, and having approx. 110 ft. of waterfrontage, the home itself is of rather exceptional character. An accurate portrayal cannot be encompassed within the advertising space available.

The main floor of about 2300 sq. ft. features a mahogany beamed living room, 35x20, with arched fireplace, guest-size dining room, four bedrooms, or three and a den, two ceramic tiled 4-pc. bathrooms (one with stall shower off the master bedroom), plumbed utility off the kitchen, and conservatory.

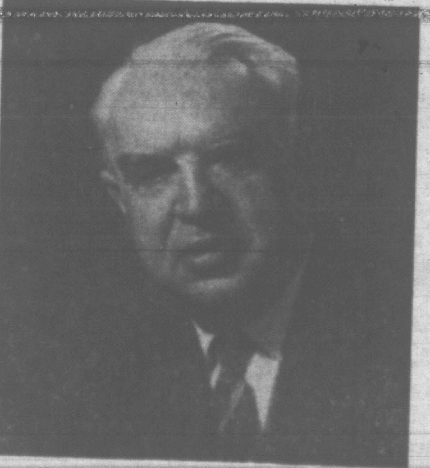

The full basement provides a fireplace, panelled recreation room, 2-pc. bath and unusually spacious storage. O-O-M hot water heat, and many features of particular interest result in a property which can only be the subject of an initial discussion and subsequent thorough viewing.

TERMS TO SUIT. EASY TO PARK 2891 Douglas EV 5-9774 EV 5-9775 What is "FOREST" Siding? A new and attractive type of siding that comes from specially selected cedar logs sawn to bring out all the distinctive character of knots, burls and grain. How Does "FOREST" compare with other siding? It has more thickness, greater wood volume to add structural strength to any building. Its snug fitting makes good insulation and its low cost makes it ideal for modest budget home builders or remodelers. How to finish "FOREST" "Forest" has a distinctive horizontal shadow line that will enhance the beauty of your home. If you wish to preserve the natural rustic effect of "Forest" apply a coat of oil filler first, then varnish or shellac. "Forest" siding also takes paint beautifully if you wish a colored finish. YOU can easily apply "FOREST" cedar siding Many home owners have applied this modern, beautiful "Forest" siding themselves without the slightest difficulty. * * * WHEN YOU BUILD SPECIFY "FOREST" SIDING BRITISH COLUMBIA FOREST PRODUCTS LTD. WOODWARD'S USED FURNITURE Parade was sad and dull Wednesday. The words were included in a succinct observation of the show by the distaff side of the household. She, like thousands of other typical Canadian housewives, raises the family in the daytime hours and watches television for entertainment in the evening.

Parade began with host Bill Walker and crew in a staged state of panic looking for guest Shelly Berman. The confusion did not end till 'finis' was written to the show. The opening 12 minutes was about the most boring television to be seen in a long while.

The show must have a budget to be able to afford guests like Berman. Perhaps the writers are not paid.

Along the line Berman launched into a song which heaped the words "... butcher, baker and your friendly undertaker." A burial would have saved the show.

I've never regarded Berman as a song and dance man and nothing on Parade will change my mind. The show could have been salvaged had he used his successful monologue format.

To sum up I'll have to quote typical Mrs. Housewife whose observations I've learned to respect:

Speculation Running High As Pearson Drafts Cabinet

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister-designate Lester B. Pearson hopes to complete his Liberal cabinet list today, and then intends to keep it close to his vest until his government is sworn into office Monday.

He said Wednesday when he was invited to form the new government, following the April 8 general election, that he would have the job done today, but that it would be a courtesy to the Queen's representative, Governor-General Vanier, to announce the list before the swearing-in ceremony.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his Progressive Conservative cabinet colleagues, meanwhile, are preparing to take their leave of General Vanier, who is recovering from a mild heart attack he suffered April 9. Government House said the retiring ministers would be welcome to pay their last formal calls on him Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Diefenbaker's East Block office files and memoranda are to be moved today to a caucus room in the Centre Block, adjacent to the offices Mr. Pearson is vacating as leader of the opposition.

ONCE KING'S OFFICE
In his new suite, Mr. Diefenbaker will occupy a corner office one floor above his old third-floor quarters, and one that previously was the private office of a Liberal prime minister, the late W. L. Mackenzie King. Subsequently it was the office of Liberal finance ministers Douglas Abbott and Walter Harris.

Speculation is running high on the make-up of the Pearson cabinet. It was regarded as almost certain that he will give cabinet posts to the four ministers remaining in the House who, along with Mr. Pearson, served in the previous Liberal government before its defeat by the Conservatives in 1957.

They are:
J. W. Pickersgill (Bonaville-Twillingate), former citizenship minister and, before entering politics actively, private secretary and special assistant to Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Mr. King. There have been indications he would like to be House leader and a minister either without portfolio or with less than onerous departmental duties so he can devote most of his time to piloting government legislation in the Commons.

MAY GET HIGH POST
Lionel Chevrier (Montreal Laurier), former transport minister, president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and president of the privy council. A senior post as Mr. Pearson's chief Quebec lieutenant seems indicated, perhaps minister of justice.

Paul Heiliger (Toronto Trinity), associate defence minister in the St. Laurent administration, who may go to the defence portfolio or to trade and commerce.

Paul Martin (Essex East), former health minister, a long-time student of international affairs who in the previous Liberal government headed Canada's delegations to United Nations assemblies and other international conferences. During the election campaign, Mr. Pearson indicated strongly that Mr. Martin would be his external affairs minister.

WORKED WITH PEARSON
The new Liberal contingent in the Commons includes a number of men who have worked closely with Mr. Pearson as senior advisers while he was in opposition, and are expected to be given important assignments in the new cabinet.

special administrative talents; Walter Gordon (Toronto Davenport), chartered accountant and management consultant—who headed the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects, and Mitchell Sharp, former deputy minister of trade and commerce who was a chairman of the 1958 national Liberal rally here.

The Liberals, with 130 members, will be three short of a bare majority in the new Commons, and on all crucial votes they will need the support of one of the opposition groups or a splintering of them to ensure the new government's safety.

COUNT ON HARKNESS
The chief opposition group will be headed by Mr. Diefenbaker, consisting of 94 Conservatives. The Liberals cannot expect automatic support of the Conservatives on all votes, but may expect some support from such individuals in the Conservative ranks as former defence minister Douglas Harkness on acceptance of nuclear warheads. It was on this issue that Mr. Harkness resigned from the Diefenbaker government Feb. 3.

Social Credit Leader Thompson, with 24 MPs, has said his group will generally support Mr. Pearson, at least in the initial stages, for the sake of orderly government. But the Social Crediters will not compromise on their principles of monetary reform, and six Quebec Creditists who originally announced and then withdrew their support of the new administration are insistent on a national flag and anthem, and increased family allowances.

T. C. Douglas, leader of 17 New Democratic Party members, has also declared his group will generally support the new government but will not compromise on Socialist principles.

LIMITLESS POWER

Tame Hydrogen Bomb Object of Research

By HOWARD SIMONS
WASHINGTON—An encouraging step toward taming the hydrogen bomb to provide the world with cheap and limitless power is under way.

Scientists of the University of California's Lawrence radiation laboratory have found experimental evidence to support a new theory suggesting that so-called mirror-machines can avoid instability problems which hitherto have frustrated attempts to maintain a thermonuclear reaction in the laboratory.

Mirror-machines are some of several different devices being used in a multi-million dollar effort to find a way to heat a gas of adequate density hot enough and long enough to fuse the hearts of certain atoms and release tremendous amounts of energy under controllable conditions.

ABUNDANT FUEL
If such a controlled thermonuclear fusion reaction can ever be achieved, the way would be clear for building thermonuclear reactors using as fuel such elements as deuterium, which is abundant in sea water.

Three conditions are necessary to achieve a thermonuclear reaction: a sufficiently high density, a temperature approaching that of the sun's interior, and a long confinement period.

Scientists, including those at the Lawrence laboratory, have been able to achieve one or two of these conditions, but not all three simultaneously.

The device being used by the Lawrence laboratory scientists in their experiments is a mirror-machine called ALICE. ALICE and devices like it are designed to confine a hot gas or plasma in a strong magnetic field for trying to achieve the thermonuclear reaction.

THEORY MODIFIED
Hitherto, some scientists had theorized that mirror-machines were not capable of maintaining stable plasmas at the high density called for a thermonuclear reaction. Recently, however, the theory was modified to suggest that stability may not be possible in a mirror-machine at intermediate densities, but appeared possible, paradoxically, at the critical high densities.

Results from recent experiments with ALICE and a similar device in England, appear to confirm the newer theory. And, as the scientists reported today, "encourage the prospects for more advanced research with mirror-machines."

The California scientists, who cautioned against calling their finding a "major breakthrough," reported their results in the April 15 issue of physical review letters, a journal of the American Physical Society.

ELECTION RESULT

Redistribution Picture Changed

By ARCH MACKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The pronounced political cleavage between town and country produced by results of the 1962 election widened in the April 8 balloting.

The Liberals strengthened their grasp on the urban vote while the voting base of the Progressive Conservatives became even more solidly entrenched in rural Canada.

This adds spice to the overdue redistribution of Canada's 263 electoral ridings. The new Parliament—made up of 130 Liberals, 94 Conservatives, 24 Social Crediters, and 17 New Democratic Party MPs—is expected to give priority to this task. Two constituencies—Queens in Prince Edward Island and Halifax—have two members each.

Put simply, it now takes fewer rural votes to elect a member of Parliament than it does in the suburbs, especially after the movement from country to city in the last 10 years.

One example is that there were 162,277 names on the voters' list in York-Scarborough in the Toronto area for the April 8 election compared with 5,637 in Des-de-la-Madeleine in Quebec. Divisions across the country as urban or rural, this picture emerges: Forty-four ridings are wholly rural and another 75 are mainly so. There are 62 completely urban in nature and 43 decisively so.

Thus, rural votes predominate in 119 constituencies and urban ones in 105, with the remaining 39 of mixed nature.

LIBS GAIN WIDELY

On April 8, the Liberals gained in all three categories and the Conservatives fell off.

The Liberals won 72 of the 105 urban ridings against 53 a year earlier and the Conservatives fell to 20 urban seats from 33.

Rurally, the Liberals gained eight seats for a total of 37 against the Conservative total of 64, five fewer than in 1962.

In the mixed category the Liberals won 22, or five more, and the Conservatives dropped four for a total of 10.

To a lesser extent, the same pattern was reflected in the sources of support for Social Credit and NDP.

Social Credit, with 20 of their 24 seats in Quebec, now have only five in urban ridings and 14 in the country. The NDP, with 17 seats, of which nine are in British Columbia, has 10 city seats and five rural.

Areas like Port Arthur in Ontario, or Skeena in B.C., for example, are classed as rural when they are predominantly industrial through mining, forestry, railroad or fishing and trapping.

But the rural-urban classifications holds particular weight in two areas where the Liberals had sought to make some inroads.

One is the 48-seat block comprising the three Prairie provinces, where the party actually lost its only rural spokesman with the defeat of Hazen Argue in Saskatchewan's Assiniboia constituency.

The Conservatives won 32 of the 34 farm seats and Social Credit two.

The other area where the Liberals foresaw gains was in rural Ontario but they won only eight to 15 for the Conservatives. Last year, the Liberals had nine.

IMPROVE IN QUEBEC

In Quebec, they did better, winning 15 to seven last year, making gains at the expense of both Social Credit and Conservatives.

The Conservatives urban losses were spread right from Victoria to St. John's, Nfld.

They now hold only one of 12 urban seats in B.C., one of five in Manitoba, seven of 43 in Ontario, two of 33 in Quebec and one of three in Nova Scotia.

Their sole urban gain was Cape Breton South where they defeated the NDP.

The strong Conservative trend on the Prairies cut urban losses in Alberta to one of six seats and the party held both of Saskatchewan's urban seats in its record sweep of all 17 constituencies in that province.

'2 City Votes To Equal Rural One'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Roland Michener, House of Commons speaker from 1957 until 1962, Tuesday suggested redistribution of ridings is needed in Canada. He contended it takes about two city votes to equal a rural one.

Mr. Michener, defeated in Toronto St. Paul's in last June's federal election and now chairman of the Manitoba Royal Commission on local government organization and finance, said the April 8 election "shows that in Canada we do not have representation by population."

He said Winnipeg's 207,000 voters elected five members this month while the 177,000 country voters in Manitoba sent nine members to Ottawa and a candidate who ran third in Toronto York-Scarborough with about 26,000 votes lost his deposit but had more votes than elected the prime minister and more than elected the opposition leader.

Tired, Happy Scouts Go Home on Frigates

Three Pacific Command frigates, laden with tired but excited Boy Scouts, sailed for Vancouver today.

Headed back to spin tales of their Victoria adventure in troops throughout the province and the Yukon were most of the 305 boys who were honored at Government House on Thursday.

They had received Queen Scout certificates from Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, gone swimming at Crystal Garden and toured the Legislative Buildings.

For many it had been their first trip from home, their first time aboard ship. They praised their Victoria chums who took them into their homes.

OVERFLOW

There weren't enough chairs at Government House to seat the crowd who attended the annual ceremony. People lined the ballroom stairways and balcony.

Fifty-two of the party who came over remained here to take part in the Scout-O-Rama show, a professionally-drilled variety show, at Central Junior High tonight and Saturday.

They rehearsed there Thursday night, along with 35 local Scouts.

"It went off without a hitch," said one of the local organizers, RCMP Corporal Hugh Dale.

Fred J. Finlay, chief executive commissioner of Canadian Scouts, who spoke at the ceremonies, met later with Victoria Scout officials and now begins a tour of inspection in B.C.

He'll attend an Island region scouters' rally at Nanaimo tonight, then goes to Burnaby, the Fraser Valley, New Westminster, Kamloops, Vernon, Penticton and Trail.

DID OFFENSIVE DOCUMENT CONTAIN DEROGATORY REFERENCE TO PRIME MINISTER?

Dief Upbraided Envoy After JFK-Mike Chat

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Post says Prime Minister Diefenbaker let loose with an angry harangue against President Kennedy last year after Kennedy had a private talk with Liberal Leader Pearson.

The Post says in a front-page story today the outburst came when Livingston Merchant, former U.S. ambassador to Canada, called on Diefenbaker for a farewell chat after Merchant decided to retire from the diplomatic service.

The newspaper, a strong supporter of the Kennedy administration, says that instead of a pleasant exchange, Merchant was met with an outburst because a few weeks earlier Kennedy had chatted privately with Pearson when Pearson attended a White House dinner for Nobel Prize winners.

Not only did Diefenbaker express his fury but he made a threat, The Post says. He told Merchant he had an offensive document the president had used during his May, 1961, Ottawa conference.

URGES OAS ENTRY

This was the much-reported working paper, prepared by presidential adviser Walt Rostow, urging Kennedy in his talks with Diefenbaker to "push" for Canadian entry into the Organization of American States, greater Canadian support for the Alliance for Progress program to help Latin American countries, more Canadian foreign aid and more vigilance in control of the Communists in Asia.

The Post says Merchant reported the incident to Washington, along with the Diefenbaker threat to make the working paper public and was instructed to tell Diefenbaker that he, Merchant, could not report the conversation to Kennedy. If he did, this would mean the end of further Kennedy negotiations with Diefenbaker.

The newspaper says that when Merchant visited Diefenbaker a second time, the prime minister was more composed and stated the working paper would not be used in the election campaign then coming up.

MENTIONED THREATS

The Post's report is the latest in a number on that working paper. Initial dispatches during the heat of the Canadian election campaign claimed the working paper contained economic and other threats against Canada and that it touched on the Canadian nuclear controversy and the Columbia River power treaty.

High sources have said that

In fact there was no mention of the Columbia River or nuclear arms, or any threats of reprisals.

On April 6, The Post reported in a dispatch from Montreal that the working paper contained a marginal note scribbled in Kennedy's handwriting. The Montreal Star, which was the first to report on the marginal note, quoted it as stating: "What do we do with the (deleted) on this point?"

In its Montreal dispatch The Post said it learned the deleted letters were S.O.B.—indicating a derogatory reference to the Canadian leader.

Immediately after the Post story appeared, it is understood the White House got in touch with the Post editors and denied that any such reference to the prime minister had been made. Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, told this reporter he had explored the question of the alleged derogatory reference with high government officials and was told the president had made no such statement.

The Post now says the president is certain the S.O.B. does not appear on the working paper. He thinks he may have written O.A.S. but no one in Washington appears to be certain about that point.

There is no explanation of how the working paper was misplaced. The Post suggests the president carried it in his pocket and dropped it while at dinner.

OTTAWA (UPI)—Outgoing Prime Minister Diefenbaker declined comment today on the Washington Post story on the now famous "working paper."

United Nations will send Dean G. Neil Perry, of Victoria, head of the faculty of commerce and business administration at the University of British Columbia, to East Africa as an economic adviser, university officials announced today.

Dry Swedes Will Get Some Liquor

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Some relief was in sight today for thirsty Swedes as mediators achieved a partial settlement of a liquor strike which began seven weeks ago.

State liquor stores made plans to resume sales of hard liquor on a partial scale by next week after 175 administrative officials in the government liquor monopoly agreed to return to work with a contract providing longer paid vacations. But 130 foremen rejected the proposals and stayed out.

The return of the administrative officials will permit distribution of stocks in the warehouses when the strike began. But the refusal of the foremen to return will prevent new production. Strict rationing is expected in Sweden's 270 liquor stores.

BODIES OF 2 MINERS BROUGHT TO SURFACE

MALARTIC, Que. (CP)—Rescue crews early today hauled to the surface of Hygrade Gold Mine the bodies of miners Hilaire Champagne, 33, and Maurice Langlois, 30, trapped 400 feet beneath fallen rock since Thursday.

Hopes at the minehead through the night that one of the miners was still alive were dashed when rescue crews deep in the cave-in mine shaft signalled that both men were dead.

Champagne leaves a wife and seven children. Langlois leaves a wife and two children.

Missing Witness Attacked

LONDON (Reuters)—A Jamaican entertainer was charged today with wounding Christine Keeler, 21-year-old model who made British headlines last month as the "missing witness" at a London trial.

The accused, Aloysius Lincoln Gordon, 31, was remanded until next Friday.

Miss Keeler suffered a black eye and cuts and bruises during an attack outside a friend's apartment Thursday night. Reason for the attack was not immediately disclosed.

Miss Keeler was the "missing witness" in the trial of another Jamaican charged with shooting at the door of the apartment in which she was staying.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy denied today that anyone in the United States government "ever informed" Cuban exile leader Jose Miro Cardena that the United States would launch an invasion of Cuba.

While rejecting Miro's charge that Kennedy had made such a promise and reneged, Kennedy also appealed for co-operation from the Cuban leader and all other Cuban exiles.

He said, however, that "we must maintain control of our policy here in Washington, and we intend to do just that."

Kennedy discussed the Cuban situation in reply to questions after addressing a luncheon meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The president said there is basic difference of interest between Cuban exiles and the U.S. in one respect. The Cubans feel "the only way they can return to their homeland is by military action of the United States." But the Washington government, he said, is conscious of its obligation to many countries all over the world.

Kennedy said that, under conditions as they now exist, the use of blockade or invasion against Cuba would be a mistake. He added he did not know what the future would bring, but he emphatically ruled out military action under present circumstances.

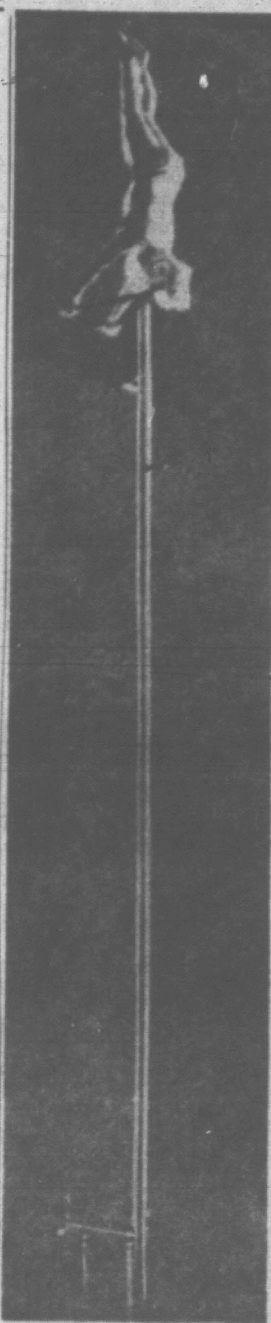

Legal Group Favors Full-Time Tax Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association suggested today the formation of a special group of lawyers to devote full time to "the development, preparation and observation of tax legislation."

Appearing before the royal commission on taxation, the association said the special group could be formed by senior officials of the departments of finance, justice and national revenue.

S. E. Edwards, a Toronto lawyer and member of the association delegation, said there have been cases where amendments to the Income Tax Act were made hurriedly to cover particular situations at the time. These, he said, tend to cause eventual imbalance in the act.

Necessary For Survival

PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle said tonight the survival of France in the nuclear age requires a purely French national atomic force.

In a nation-wide radio-television address the president reaffirmed his intention, spelled out in his Jan. 14 press conference, to go it alone in the field of nuclear weapons.

He said French armament would be co-ordinated with defences in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and especially with American atomic power, but would not be handed over to others.

The president said a strictly French nuclear deterrent is necessary to forestall enemy attacks on French soil in the midst of a possible intercontinental conflict.

De Gaulle also reasserted his opposition to British entry into the European Common Market at this time—again repeating a theme of his January press conference.

In speaking of the Common Market, he took an intensely nationalistic line and declared that France would not surrender any of its sovereignty.

The president asserted that European co-operation must be based on co-operation among nations because any "abdication by European states, in particular by France, would inevitably lead to foreign domination."

The president, reiterating that the British people have "attachments beyond our (European) community," summed up his European policy in this phrase:

"In brief, it seems essential to us that Europe must be Europe and France must be France."

PEARSON-JFK TALKS

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy and Liberal Leader Pearson likely will attempt to settle the Canada-U.S. nuclear controversy before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministerial conference opens at Ottawa May 22.

Informants said one issue the president plans to take up with the prime minister-designate at their first formal conference—probably early next month—is provision of U.S. nuclear warheads for Canadian defence forces in Europe and Canada.

American authorities see no major problem in settling Pearson to agree to accept the warheads, since the latter indicated during the election campaign just ended he would meet Canada's obligations under NATO and the North American air defence agreement.

This would mean arming the Canadian air division and army brigade in Europe with American nuclear weapons.

The aide memoire, published in the transcript of committee hearings held last month, said also the general provisions of the bill "would seriously endanger many Canadian exports to the U.S., specifically trade in goods which are normally shipped in bulk for repackaging in the U.S."

"For example, there is an important seasonal trade between Canada and the U.S. in agricultural products which would be adversely affected. Such products include eggs, meat and meat products, forage and grass seeds, feedstuffs, fresh fruits and vegetables."

The U.S. lumber industry has been particularly vocal in its opposition to the bill, claiming it would force U.S. importers and distributors to stamp the country of origin on all imported and repackaged goods, so that each time the goods are moved from one container to another, the new container would have to be so marked.

It also would require all Canadian lumber sold in the U.S. to be marked with the country of origin, a move which U.S. lumbermen attempted to push through the U.S. tariff commission but were turned down.

Assistant Treasury Secretary James Reed has told the Senate finance committee the U.S. government considers the proposed legislation a violation of international trade obligations and that in all likelihood it would be vetoed by President Kennedy if ever approved by Congress.

The legislation, approved by the House of Representatives but bottled up in the Senate, would conflict with long-standing contractual undertakings of the U.S. to Canada whereby lumber is exempted from marks-of-origin requirements.

TORONTO STAGES RECEPTION

150,000 Whoop for Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto opened its heart today in a jubilant, boisterous tribute to its triumphant Maple Leaf hockey team — 1963 Stanley Cup champions.

The Leafs' 3-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings Thursday night in the deciding game of the best-of-seven final brought out about 150,000 happy people to line downtown Bay Street and cheer the team to a civic reception at city hall. (See story page 10.)

The players rode in cars up Bay Street preceded by the band of the Queen's Own Rifles and flanked by motorcycle policemen with flashing red lights and moaning sirens.

Team officials and club owners rode proudly in the first car containing the Stanley Cup, symbol of world hockey supremacy.

Centre Dave Keon, the star of the final game, was given a tremendous cheer when he mounted the city hall steps.

Team captain George Armstrong in a short speech told the crowd the team was happy and proud.

Ticker tape showered down on the crowd 25 minutes before the parade was due to pass.

A chant "we want Keon," which started in a small section of the crowd, spread to a crescendo among the thousands packing the street.

Placards and banners sprouted up from the crowd—the largest of which read: "Hockey, the greatest sport; Leafs, the greatest team; Keon, the greatest player."

Police gave a "conservative" estimate of the crowd to the immediate vicinity of city hall at 25,000.

Too Oft in the Stilly Night

EARLY this month Pat and I had thought of joining the bird-watchers or the local branch of the Audubon society, if there is one.

We had spent half an hour one day following through the glasses a flock of brant that visited the bay, cruised it with purpose and sailed in irregular flotilla around Chinese Point. The next afternoon we sighted a bald eagle above the rocks, where the gulls, brave in numbers, were giving it the same kind of bad time some of the Tories were giving the U.S. state department.

The following morning, a redwing blackbird that comes each spring to the thicket above Woody Bay, broke in on our conversation as I was going out the door. We stopped talking to listen to its bell tones and I almost missed my bus.

Then, when we were at Shawnigan, Pat saw a duck she couldn't identify and, back home, I had to thumb through my Taverner to convince her it was a merganser.

For a week a succession of incidents had focused our attention on birds and the lady of the house felt the need to know more about them.

"It would be a nice interest for us," she explained. "We could learn something about the different species, study them, a bit and be better informed on what's around us. I've always been fond of dickie birds. They're all dickie birds to her, from the big blue heron who stalks the shallows in front of our lot at low tide to the chickadees that appear in swarms late in the season."

That was at the beginning of the month. Now we're a little less enchanted.

Over the long weekend we went to Shawnigan for relaxation, planning to clean up a little more, burn a few piles of twigs and branches that came down during winter storms—and particularly to get in a lot of sleep.

We retired early and were soon unconscious. In the dark of very early morning I awakened to a sound like a reluctant engine refusing to run smoothly.

It started with a soft "chuff-chuff-chuff" and followed with a "chirrrrr" as it ran down.

The voice beside me in the dark said, "Listen!"

Stott

"I am listening," I replied. "What damn fool would be starting up an engine at this time?"

"What time is it?" the voice asked.

So I turned on the light to look at the clock. It was 3:15.

The noise came through the window again: "Chuff-chuff-chuff, chirrrr."

Unhappily I thought of the things that can go wrong with a fridge and realized that we'd connected it for the first time this year. "That ice-box of yours on the frits again?" I asked.

"Nope," she answered. "The noise is coming from the outside." Again it sounded: "Chuff-chuff-chuff-chirrrr."

"You know what?" came the query. "I think it's a dickie bird?"

"At 3:15 you want to play guessing games and make funnies?" I asked.

"No," she said. "Get up and look."

So I crawled from my warm bed, picked up the flashlight and from the window swept the bush and trees with its beam. There was nothing there.

"Turn off the flash," the lady instructed me. I did. Two minutes later the noise came again. "It's a dickie bird," she said with conviction.

I climbed out of the window, leaned in my pyjamas against a damp arbutus in the light of the pale yellow-moon and waited. This, I thought, was about as silly as you can get. But the "Chuff-chuff-chuff-chirrrr" sounded suddenly almost above me. I whipped on the light, swung it to our roof and sure enough it was a dickie-bird, a blue grouse perched on our ridge and making like a weary motor at four-minute intervals.

I picked up a rock, heaved it and the grouse took off. It didn't return until 6:30 to start all over again. That was early Saturday morning. On Sunday morning it began operations two minutes late at 3:17 and I scared it away temporarily with a badly aimed stone that gouged out a hunk of aging shale.

In the watery moonlight of early Monday it returned to schedule. The faltering motor chuffed into action at 3:16. I stoned it away until 6:45.

Through lack of sleep, we're losing some of our affection for dickie-birds. Instead of joining an Audubon society, we're thinking of a short course on how to kill and cook grouse.

Canada OAS Entry Seen Within Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Early action on movement toward Canadian membership in the hemisphere.

The OAS embraces the United States plus the 20 Latin American republics, though the present government of Cuba has been excluded from its activities.

Both Liberal Leader Pearson, the incoming prime minister, and Paul Martin, considered likely to become the new external affairs minister, are on record in favor of Canada's joining.

Ont. to Create 300,000 Jobs

TORONTO (CP)—A five-year economic plan to create 300,000 new jobs by 1967 by expanding industry was outlined in the Ontario legislature Thursday.

Economics Minister Macaulay said the plan may include construction of a $500,000,000 nuclear power plant capable of generating 1,800,000 kilowatts.

He said the plan will concentrate on the manufacturing industry as "the central core of the Ontario economy" and will be achieved by creating a "favorable environment for expansion."

He listed nine policies to this end, including a reduction in imports, increased exports and government loans and grants to industry.

Calling for greater economic co-operation among the provinces, Mr. Macaulay said it would be "unfortunate" if a growth race among the provinces resulted in destructive competition.

encouraging replacement of imported goods with Ontario-made products, increasing purchases of Canadian products and expanding exports.

The government will set goals to bring 160 new firms into Ontario.

Blast Kills Two

PARIS (Reuters) — At least two persons were killed and 27 injured today in an explosion and fire at an oil products plant and depot in suburban Gennevilliers. Scores of firemen battled the blaze for 90 minutes before bringing it under control. The plant was owned by a French subsidiary of the British Petroleum Company.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Pamper Those Easter Plants

Easter pot plants are usually recommended as being suitable for growing in the garden, with the result that one sees sad lilies and hydrangeas shivering in April breezes.

These two plants are hardy garden plants here to be sure, but after being greenhouse raised and then transferred to a 70-degree Fahrenheit dwelling for a week or so they are bound to be unhappy at a further change to outdoor conditions.

It is usually well along in May before these plants can safely be put into the garden. Their leaves and growth tips are pretty soft and are sure to feel the effect of sudden chilling. While the plants may not be killed outright, their vigor will certainly be impaired and it may be two or three years before any appreciable showing is again made.

Keep the plants well watered indoors as long as the flowers are attractive. As they fade, nip off the flower heads and water a little less.

The Easter lily (usually the Croft or a similar type) will require gradually decreasing amounts of water, until by the time it is put into the garden it may be almost dormant. Do not try to keep it in active growth, but plant it in a well enriched soil where it may even try to bloom again this fall.

To assist the bulb to build up for next year, fall flower buds should be removed as soon as seen.

Hydrangeas will need lots of water as long as they have leaves. Once planted into the garden they should continue growing without pause all this summer. Next year they should flower in early summer, their natural season.

They are the moisture indicators of the garden. If the soil around their roots begins to lose moisture rapidly on a hot summer day, the hydrangeas leaves will droop dismally. Therefore they require a humus-filled soil to hold a steady supply, but even so it must be frequently replenished or the plants will not thrive.

Congressman Objects To Caribou

Democratic Congressman says it is a "disgrace" the U.S. Army is buying Caribou transport planes from Canada and helping pay for Canadian development of a Caribou II. But the army likes the planes.

Rep. Daniel Flood of Pennsylvania continued his attack on the Caribou during House appropriations hearings. "To tell me that nowhere in the U.S., with our record in aviation production, that some American firm could not have produced that pigeon, to me is utter nonsense," Flood said in an exchange with army secretary Cyrus Vance and chief of staff Gen. Earle Wheeler. "I would have a top-flight investigation of the whole thing if I sat in the Senate," he said.

Vance said, "Caribou I has proven to be an excellent aircraft. I think Gen. Wheeler can testify what it is doing in Viet Nam right now."

Dictator's Henchman Subject of Bribery

OTTAWA (CP)—An Ottawa man was charged Thursday with attempting to bribe a government official to use his influence to get the federal government to rescind a deportation order against Arturo Espallat, former security chief for the Dominican Republic under slain dictator Rafael Trujillo.

Charged is Lawrence Theobald, 39, manager of the Savoy Apartment Motel where Espallat and his family lived some time ago. Theobald was arrested late Thursday by the RCMP and later was released on $500 bail.

Gains Sliced at Toronto

Prices remained on the plus side on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, but many gains registered earlier in the day were during light late-day trading.

Stocks were higher at Montreal in moderate trading. At New York gains and losses of key stocks were fractional.

AT NEW YORK the leading steel stocks were generally higher until news came that Republic Steel, third biggest steelmaker in the U.S., had cancelled its $4.50-a-ton price increase on steel plate. Republic wiped out its moderate rise, traded fractionally lower for a while, then recovered to sell about unchanged.

U.S. steel held a fractional gain. Bethlehem and Wheeling were off fractions.

AT MONTREAL Canadian Breweries was up 1/4 to 1 1/4. Other gainers included Bell, up 1/4 to 3/4; Pacific Petroleum, up 1/4 to 1 1/4; CPR, up 1/4 to 1 1/4; and Hudson Bay Mining, up 1/4 to 1 1/4.

Trading actively, Steco was unchanged at 20 1/2.

Among losers, Industrial Acceptance fell 1/4 to 26 1/2, International Utilities 1/4 to 49 1/2, Banque Provinciale 1/4 to 51 1/2 and Price 1/4 to 38 1/2.

AT VANCOUVER trading was heavy, Bethlehem Copper was up at $3.05 and Fort St. John at $1.09. Western Mines dropped to $1.10 and Cowichan Copper to $1.12. Mt. Washington climbed to $1.19, while Grandeur dropped to $1.60. B.C. Power was up at $2.00.

AT LONDON, with a background of good news from several leading companies and good March trade figures, stock markets maintained a higher trend today.

Gills derived continued benefit from government financing plans, although the market was rather less buoyant than Thursday. Gains ranged to 1/4.

U.S. dollar stocks were mixed but Canadian issues responded to further gains at Montreal and Toronto. Gains of point or more went to Price Brothers, Hiram Walker, International Nickel and Abitibi.

Trading actively, Steco was unchanged at 20 1/2.

Among losers, Industrial Acceptance fell 1/4 to 26 1/2, International Utilities 1/4 to 49 1/2, Banque Provinciale 1/4 to 51 1/2 and Price 1/4 to 38 1/2.

AT VANCOUVER trading was heavy, Bethlehem Copper was up at $3.05 and Fort St. John at $1.09. Western Mines dropped to $1.10 and Cowichan Copper to $1.12. Mt. Washington climbed to $1.19, while Grandeur dropped to $1.60. B.C. Power was up at $2.00.

AT LONDON, with a background of good news from several leading companies and good March trade figures, stock markets maintained a higher trend today.

Gills derived continued benefit from government financing plans, although the market was rather less buoyant than Thursday. Gains ranged to 1/4.

U.S. dollar stocks were mixed but Canadian issues responded to further gains at Montreal and Toronto. Gains of point or more went to Price Brothers, Hiram Walker, International Nickel and Abitibi.

AT NEW YORK the leading steel stocks were generally higher until news came that Republic Steel, third biggest steelmaker in the U.S., had cancelled its $4.50-a-ton price increase on steel plate. Republic wiped out its moderate rise, traded fractionally lower for a while, then recovered to sell about unchanged.

U.S. steel held a fractional gain. Bethlehem and Wheeling were off fractions.

AT MONTREAL Canadian Breweries was up 1/4 to 1 1/4. Other gainers included Bell, up 1/4 to 3/4; Pacific Petroleum, up 1/4 to 1 1/4; CPR, up 1/4 to 1 1/4; and Hudson Bay Mining, up 1/4 to 1 1/4.

STEEL PRICES TO HOLD IN CANADA

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—There is no likelihood of a steel price rise in Canada in the near future, D. S. Holbrook, Algoma Steel Corporation chairman and president, told the company's annual meeting of shareholders Thursday.

He made no reference to some recent increases in United States prices but said Canadian prices would remain static because of the "ever-present alternatives of other materials and with fabricated steel products made by our customers undergoing severe competition."

He also cited foreign steel's, the cheapest in recent years, as a reason.

Mr. Holbrook said: "Prices in Canada are determined by competitive conditions, not only within the Canadian domestic steel industry, but also from foreign steel, particularly among Algoma's products competition from other materials such as concrete."

SYDNEY NORTHCOTE

4,000 to Take Part in 1,200-Entry Music Festival

When the 1963 Greater Victoria Music Festival opens on Monday with piano and vocal solo competitions, two crowded weeks will lie before a number of festival officials, more than 1,200 entrants and a team of seven adjudicators.

By the time the festival ends with the schools' honor performance on May 3, approximately 4,000 persons will have been involved in one way and another, not counting audiences.

Sessions will occupy around nine hours most days (there are no events scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, April 27 and 28). They begin at 9 a.m. and continue through the afternoon with special event programs taking place each evening.

Among the adjudicators, the two who come from the greatest distance and are probably the most distinguished are Guy Johnson for piano and Sydney Northcote vocal and choral.

Mr. Johnson is a Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music, London, England, and he is one of the most distinguished and sought after professors of pianoforte at the Royal Academy.

Distinction came to him first when he gained an open scholarship to the Royal Academy, where he studied orchestral and choral conducting under Sir Henry Wood and piano with the renowned Tobias Matthay, at whose school in London he taught from 1938.

Later he went to Paris, where he studied under the great French pianist, Alfred Cortot.

He is external examiner in piano to the Royal Scottish and Royal Irish Academies of Music and has travelled far and wide as an examiner for the Associated Board of the Royal Schools.

Dr. Northcote, since 1940, has been national music adviser to the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust.

He has judged at all the leading festivals in the country, including Llangollen International Eisteddfod and the Gaelic Mod, and has also judged at festivals in the West Indies and in Hong Kong.

As the author, editor and compiler of song collections and books on vocal music, his credits are long.

In collaboration with Dr. Herbert Wiseman, he is responsible for the Clarendon Class Singing Course, Clarendon Folk Song Books, Clarendon Books of Christmas Carols and so forth.

He is a contributor to Grove's Dictionary of Music, Collier's Encyclopedia (U.S.A.) and various musical journals.

Among the present posts held by Dr. Northcote are chairmanships of the Intimate Opera Society, Carl Rosa Opera Trust, British Federation of Festivals and the Croydon Music Festival.

Programs covering the complete festival are now available at city music stores, also nominally priced season tickets admitting the holder to any and all sessions, including the vocal and piano-championship concert and honor performance on Friday, April 26.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 19, 1963 - PAGE 17

Monte Roberts

I am not much of a fisherman. One of the reasons I am not much of a fisherman is, I seldom go fishing.

One of the reasons I seldom go fishing is, I am afraid if I went fishing I might catch a fish.

And if I caught a fish, I would be duty bound to yard him (her?) into the boat.

Yarding a fish into a boat is hard work. I do not like hard work.

Where was I? Oh, yes, despite the fact I am not much of a fisherman, I cannot help but be intrigued by what is going on in a fish hatchery in South Carolina.

What is going on in this fish hatchery is an educational course teaching fish how not to be caught.

The circumstances, according to Sports Illustrated magazine, are these:

Fish hatcheries are in business to stock streams and lakes and such with fish, so that sports fishermen can sally forth at the break of day and catch fish.

But sports fishermen have been complaining because the fish raised in hatcheries do not live long enough to become big enough to please the sports fishermen.

The reason for this is, hatchery-raised fish are accustomed to eating three square meals a day, at least. And when they are turned loose in what is to be their native element, they do not know the difference between a hook lurking behind a lure, and a free meal.

So what are the hatchery people in South Carolina doing about this?

They are instituting a training course to wise up potential trophies so they'll live long enough to become big enough, etc.

The hatchery people do this by fishing at the hatchery with fly rods and barbless hook lures.

At first the innocent little fishes bit at every lure in sight, but after being barked around on the end of a line for a while they began to smarten up.

Before the products of this particular hatchery were placed in public waters, they barely spare a sneer for lures at the end of a line.

As I understand it, all the thanks the hatchery people are getting from fishermen is the back of the hand. The fishermen are beefing because the fish are living long enough to grow big enough, etc., but won't be caught.

2 Hurt In 5-Car Collision

A car driven by an elderly man swung wildly out of control through the Douglas-Belleville intersection shortly after noon and hit four other cars.

It jumped the curb and came to rest on the lawn of Thunderbird Park.

Two persons were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital but were not believed seriously injured.

The car, driven by Nick Addams, 274 Beach Drive, was proceeding south on Douglas when, he said, it stuck in gear.

It sideswiped a parked car on Douglas and continued south towards Belleville. To avoid a line of cars stopped in front of him at the signal lights, Mr. Addams swung over to the wrong side of the road.

His car bounced off an approaching vehicle, driven by Trudy Durkin.

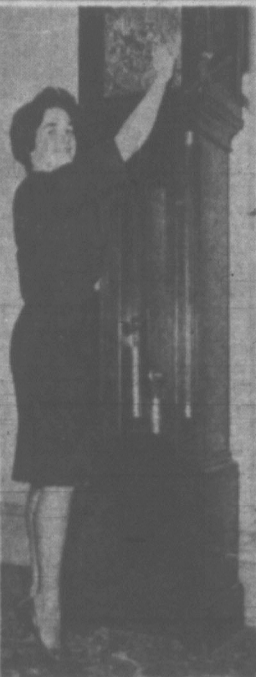

Mr. Addams' car then hit and badly damaged the rear of a small English car, which in turn was slammed into another small car.

Still going, Mr. Addams' car crossed the intersection and barely missed two steel poles before stopping upright on the park grass.

Mr. Addams suffered only superficial cuts on the face during the harrowing ride.

A traffic jam developed at the intersection following the collision, fed by the lunch-hour rush of civil servants.

A crowd of pedestrians milled about, adding to the confusion.

IT'S ALMOST the eleventh hour for anyone who wants to enter the Miss Victoria contest as Flora Lowe, the latest entrant, here points out. The 19-year-old Empress Hotel clerk, who lives at 62 Logan Ave., is a Scottish dancer and former Bluebird Majorette. Closing date for entries is next Monday. Full details may be obtained by contacting either Doug Webb at 383-0744 or 477-4342 or Win Garcin at 382-6111, local 2564, or 383-1484.

$2 MILLION HIGH-RISE START SOON

Architectural drawings for the first phase of a controversial twin-tower high-rise apartment near the Rockland water tower are well under way.

City planning officer Rod Clark today said he understood the plans should be completed by summer, paving the way for a construction start.

Estimated at better than $2,000,000, the project calls for construction of a 12-storey building followed later by a 16-storey structure using the same entrance.

The site was purchased from the city by Blake Construction of Vancouver for $55,000 almost two years ago despite protests from some nearby residents and one alderman's claim that the property was worth more than $100,000.

Argued With Father Over Young Friend

It was revealed in a coroner's inquest today that George and Helen Bickford, found dead in their house, Feb. 13, were shot to death two days earlier by their 16-year-old son Ronald.

The boy wrote a "sworn testament" for police in which he described how and why he shot his parents shortly before 9 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 11, in their house at 3625 Melcroft.

He had shot his father during an argument over his feelings towards a six-year-old girl.

He had shot his mother while she was phoning for police.

He had been living in the house alone with their bodies until Saanich police discovered them at about 12:30 p.m. the following Wednesday.

The youth already has been committed to Esquimalt.

The murder was discovered after George Hess, manager of the Colony Steak House, where Mrs. Bickford was a waitress, had become alarmed at her failing to report for work two days in a row.

He testified he had tried to reach his employee by phone when she did not come to work Monday night. He could get no answer at her house.

"She was a very conscientious worker; she would have told me if anything was wrong," he told a coroner's jury in Saanich courtroom today.

"DEAD SILENT"

When she did not turn up Tuesday night either, he went to the house and tried to raise somebody by ringing and knocking at both front and back doors.

"It was dead silent," he said. Mr. Hess testified he saw what looked like laundry bags through a window, and notified police.

Saanich deputy chief John Hamilton and Cpl. Leslie Ledson also tried to get in and finally broke in through a basement window.

Cpl. Ledson testified he went through the basement and upstairs where he let the deputy in through the back door.

"UNDER A SHEET"

"I could only get the kitchen door open with difficulty," deputy Hamilton said. "I could see what appeared to be a body lying face down under a sheet lying against the door."

This was Mrs. Bickford. She had been shot four times—once through the chest, and three times in the head.

In a hallway leading to bedrooms, Mr. Bickford was lying on his back also under a sheet.

After observing the bodies and notifying the coroner, the officers noticed the electric kettle was steaming and that a cup contained instant coffee powder.

What appeared to be a confession lay on the counter beside the phone.

"I tried to read part of this, and drew the conclusion that someone was still in the house or had just left prior to our arrival," Cpl. Ledson said.

On the kitchen floor were a heat row of weapons: a sheath knife, a home-made knife, bicycle chain, two pairs of scissors, bow and arrows, two rifles, and a box of cartridges.

"MURDER WEAPON"

All were tagged "unused" except for a .22 single shot rifle which bore the inscription "murder weapon."

The officers began a more thorough search of the house. Deputy Hamilton said he stepped over the body of Mr. Bickford and opened the door to a bedroom on the east side of the house.

Here he found another sheet-covered body.

"But I could see movement. I called to Cpl. Ledson, 'Here's another one, and it's still alive,' then I went and phoned for an ambulance," the deputy testified.

"I went into the bedroom and pulled back the sheet," Cpl. Ledson told the jury.

"I found a young boy lying there with his head facing the bed. I asked him if he was all right."

"He turned his head and looked up at the ceiling."

"He replied 'I'm O.K.," the coroner testified.

"I asked him who he was and he said he was Ronald Bickford. He said he was 16 years old."

Deputy Hamilton said he asked Bickford why he was under the covers.

"I'm scared—I did it," was the reply.

Cpl. Ledson said the boy told them he was making a cup of coffee when he heard them at the door. He then went and lay down under a sheet in his bedroom.

"He said he had an argument and was afraid his father was going to nearly kill him," Cpl. Ledson said.

Detective Robin Stewart arrived at about 12:40 p.m. and told the boy he was under arrest.

"That's okay by me," the boy replied.

"SIGNED CONFESSION"

He then led police to the kitchen where he signed each page of the confession he had written.

The document, headed "Sworn testimony—no perjury, but the truth—Ronald Bickford" was read to the jury.

It related to an argument the youth and his mother had the day of the murder over his relationship with a six-year-old girl.

"She started to rib me about her and the letters I had written her," it read.

"Six years is too young for you to kiss her," she said.

"Don't even look at her anymore, she told me, after all this has been going on two years now."

"I told her 'get off my back and stop creeping...'"

"She said (the girl) had squealed to her mother, 'so what are you going to do now, big boy?'"

"Sometimes I think I must have raised a nut for a son."

"I decided to grab (the girl) as she left school and beat the stuffing out of her because she squealed. But then I decided not to because I knew how big guys get hurt after doing a thing like that."

"She (his mother) told me 'you don't scare me; if you touch me I will tell dad and he will work you over good—he will beat you up and splatter your blood all over the walls.'"

"She said she would tell dad when they came home that night..."

"PLOT NEXT MOVE"

"I was left alone in the house to walk around and plot my next move..."

The confession described how the boy waited, afraid, for his parents' return. When they came back:

"Dad came out of the bedroom and started an argument..."

"Trembling, I pointed the gun at him and shot him in the eye."

"He jumped like a bull, and fell back dead."

"My mother came out of the bedroom and said 'Oh my God, you've killed him.'"

Det. Stewart testified the boy said he had told his mother to stop dialling, and had shot her when she refused.

"I shot her once; she fell to one knee. She still had the phone in her hand. I loaded again and shot her in the head. She fell to both knees, but she still held the phone. I shot her again in the head and she fell out flat, and dropped the phone. I watched her and she moved, so I shot her again, the boy told police."

He also said he had never left the house until discovered.

"I didn't eat or sleep much, and I'm glad you came," he had said.

Controls Here On Pesticides Said Adequate

Dangerous pesticides are under adequate control in B.C., an agriculture department spokesman said today.

Chester L. Neilson, provincial entomologist said he thought it unlikely that B.C. would follow Manitoba's lead in adopting new controls.

The Manitoba Legislature this week gave second reading to a bill to control and regulate distribution and use of chemicals used in suppressing insects.

Mr. Neilson said the amount of dangerous chemicals used in this province is a small fraction of the amounts used on the prairies.

"REGULATED"

B.C., like every province in Canada, has its pesticide use regulated and inspected by federal government food and drug bureau experts. A branch of office is located in Vancouver.

Tests are made of various home-grown foods and tolerances for trace of poisonous substances are set. If traces greater than 1/100th part of a dangerous amount are detected, action is immediately taken to reduce the pesticide use, Mr. Neilson said.

For instance, when federal lab tests recently showed a slight increase over the accepted tolerance of a poison known as Aldrin, in potato samples, provincial authorities were advised.

"BULLETINS ISSUED"

Bulletins have gone out this month to all district agriculturalists suggesting that all potato growers reduce their use of soil insecticides wherever possible.

"Do not treat soil for tuber flea beetle control with Aldrin, Dieldrin or Chlorane during 1963," said the bulletin, which then advised safer methods of crop protection.

"We are making these recommendations as a precautionary measure, which we feel is in the best interest of growers," said Mr. Neilson.

"DESTROY CROPS"

He pointed out that all provinces have the right to destroy crops where the established tolerances are not adhered to.

It was announced this week in Washington, D.C., that a congressional subcommittee will soon investigate the use of insecticides.

The study was inspired by Rachel Carson's book, "Silent Spring," which warns of dangers to man and his environment from unrestrained use of insecticides.

"Ask The Times"

Q—What coverage does B.C. Hospital Insurance give B.C. residents outside the province? S.S.

A—In-patient benefits are effective only for a three-month period and hospitalization must occur within three months of leaving B.C. If hospitalization takes place in another province, B.C.H.I.S. will pay the hospital's standard approved ward rate less $1 per day.

If the daily rate charged by a hospital outside of B.C. includes a capital charge related to buildings or fixed equipment costs, these charges are payable by the patient because such items are not included in rates charged by B.C. hospitals.

If a person is hospitalized outside of Canada, B.C.H.I.S. will pay up to a maximum of $12 per day and $4 per day for a newborn.

Topics of the Day

St. Joseph's building fund campaign is ended but contributions are still being received. The latest is a contribution of $540 made Thursday by Victoria and Oak Bay Firefighters Local 730. The campaign target of $350,000 has now been exceeded by about $2,000.

The extra donations are being put in a development fund that will be used to improve existing facilities at the hospital.

Double-Slaying Inquest Ends

A coroner's jury today ruled that George Alfred Bickford and Mary Helene Bickford died on Feb. 11 by gun shot wounds from a gun fired by their son Ronald William Bickford, 16.

The jury arrived at the verdict after 10 minutes deliberation at the conclusion of the inquest today in Saanich court room. (See Page 17.)

Three Years for Murder Attempt

VANCOUVER (CP)—An unemployed auctioneer was convicted today of attempting to murder his estranged wife and sentenced to three years in prison. Mr. Justice H. A. Maclean said he would have imposed a heavier term against Donald Robert Hoff, 27, except for a recommendation for mercy by the assize court jury.

Hoff was charged after his wife was stabbed in the throat at Hoff's Vancouver apartment Jan. 15.

Giant Still Seized In Quebec

ST. EUSTACHE, Que. (CP)—A giant still that brought in $100,000 monthly for its operators was uncovered today by RCMP officers near this community 10 miles northwest of Montreal. The RCMP said the still, the largest found in the province in years, turned out 200 gallons of alcohol a day. Two men were taken into custody.

Ontario Farmer Beaten to Death

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Lionel Sabourin, 32, a farmer, was found beaten to death in his barn near here today and a brother, Richard, also beaten and bound in their barn, was taken to hospital badly hurt. The two men lived alone on their farm home.

Belgian Wins Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP)—Aurele van der Driessche of Belgium won the 26th running of the Boston Marathon today by a wide margin. He covered the 26 miles, 385 yards in 2:18:58. The previous mark was 2:20:05 set in 1957 by Johnny Kelley of Groton, Conn.

Kelley was second in 2:21:09. Taking third was Brian Kilby of England.

U.S. Gov't Backs Canada
In Opposing Trade Curbs

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. government has rushed to Canada's support in condemning a proposed bill which would increase handling, packaging and marketing problems for Canadian goods sold in the U.S. One section of the bill is aimed specifically at curtailing Canada's huge U.S. lumber market.

Assistant Treasury Secretary James Reed has told the Senate finance committee the U.S. government considers the proposed legislation a violation of international trade obligations and that in all likelihood it would be vetoed by President Kennedy if ever approved by Congress.

The legislation, approved by the House of Representatives but bottled up in the Senate committee, would force U.S. importers and distributors to stamp the country of origin on all imported and repackaged goods, so that each time the goods are moved from one container to another, the new container would have to be so marked.

It also would require all Canadian lumber sold in the U.S. to be marked with the country of origin, a move which U.S. lumbermen attempted to push through the U.S. tariff commission but were turned down.

RUNS COUNTER TO GATT

The Canadian government told the U.S. in an aide memoire dated March 19 that marking of Canadian lumber with the country of origin would run counter to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and "would conflict with long-standing contractual undertakings of the U.S. to Canada whereby lumber is exempted from marks of origin requirements."

The aide memoire, published in the transcript of committee hearings held last month, said

Missing
Witness Attacked

LONDON (Reuters)—A Jamaican entertainer was charged today with wounding Christine Keeler, 21-year-old model who made British headlines last month as the "missing witness" at a London trial.

The accused, Aloysius Lincoln Gordon, 31, was remanded until next Friday.

Miss Keeler suffered a black eye and cuts and bruises during an attack outside a friend's apartment Thursday night.

Reason for the attack was not immediately disclosed.

Miss Keeler was the "missing witness" in the trial of another Jamaican charged with shooting at the door of the apartment in which she was staying.

Party Breaks Up

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters) — Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the doomed federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, announced today the breakup of his United Federal party which has ruled the Central African federation for most of its 10-year existence.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy denied today that anyone in the United States government "ever informed" Cuban exile leader Jose Miro Cardona that the United States would launch an invasion of Cuba.

While rejecting Miro's charge that Kennedy had made such a promise and reneged, Kennedy also appealed for co-operation from the Cuban leader and all other Cuban exiles.

He said, however, that "we must maintain control of our policy here in Washington, and we intend to do just that."

Kennedy discussed the Cuban situation in reply to questions after addressing a luncheon meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The president said there is basic difference of interest between Cuban exiles and the U.S. in one respect. The Cubans feel "the only way they can return to their homeland is by military action of the United States." But the Washington government, he said, is conscious of its obligation to many countries all over the world.

Kennedy said that, under conditions as they now exist, the use of blockade or invasion against Cuba would be a mistake. He added he did not know what the future would bring, but he emphatically ruled out military action under present circumstances.

Warheads Issue
Settlement Seen

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy and Liberal Leader Pearson likely will attempt to settle the Canada-U.S. nuclear controversy before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministerial conference opens at Ottawa May 22.

Informants said one issue the president plans to take up with the prime minister-designate at their first formal conference—probably early next month—is provision of U.S. nuclear warheads for Canadian defence forces in Europe and Canada. American authorities see no major problem in getting Pearson to agree to accept the warheads, since the latter indicated during the election campaign just ended he would meet Canada's obligations under NATO and the North American air defence agreement.

Huge Parade
In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto opened its heart today in a jubilant, boisterous tribute to its triumphant Maple Leaf hockey team—1963 Stanley Cup champions.

The Leafs' 3-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings Thursday night in the deciding game of the best-of-seven final brought out about 150,000 happy people to line downtown Bay Street and cheer the team to a civic reception at city hall. (See story Page 10.)

when he mounted the city hall steps.

Team captain George Armstrong in a short speech told the crowd the team was happy and proud.

Ticker tape showered down on the crowd 25 minutes before the parade was due to pass.

A chant "we want Keon," which started in a small section of the crowd, spread to a crescendo among the thousands packing the street.

Placards and banners sprouted up from the crowd—the largest of which read: "Hockey, the greatest sport; Leafs the greatest team; Keon the greatest player."

Police gave a "conservative" estimate of the crowd in the immediate vicinity of city hall at 25,000.

DE GAULLE VOW

'Go It Alone
On A-Force'

PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle said tonight the survival of France in the nuclear age requires a purely French national atomic force.

In a nation-wide radio-television address the president reaffirmed his intention, spelled out in his Jan. 14 press conference, to go it alone in the field of nuclear weapons.

He said French armament would be co-ordinated with defenses in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and especially with American atomic power, but would not be handed over to others.

The president said a strictly French nuclear deterrent is necessary to forestall enemy attacks on French soil in the midst of a possible intercontinental conflict.

De Gaulle also reiterated his opposition to British entry into the European Common Market at this time—again repeating a theme of his January press conference.

In speaking of the Common Market, he took an intensely nationalistic line and declared that France would not surrender any of its sovereignty.

The president asserted that European co-operation must be based on co-operation among nations because any "abdication by European states, in particular by France, would inevitably lead to foreign domination."

The president, reiterating that the British people have "attachments beyond our (European) community," summed up his European policy in this phrase:

"In brief, it seems essential to us that Europe must be Europe and France must be France."

BODIES OF 2 MINERS
BROUGHT TO SURFACE

MALARTIC, Que. (CP)—Rescue crews early today hauled to the surface of Hygrade Gold Mine the bodies of miners Hilaire Champagne, 33, and Maurice Langlois, 30, trapped 400 feet beneath fallen rock since Thursday.

Hopes at the minehead through the night that one of the miners was still alive were dashed when rescue crews deep in the cave-in mine shaft signalled that both men were dead.

Champagne leaves a wife and seven children. Langlois leaves a wife and two children.

Dief Upbraided Envoy After JFK-Mike Chat

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Post says Prime Minister Diefenbaker let loose with an angry harangue against President Kennedy last year after Kennedy had a private talk with Liberal Leader Pearson.

The Post says in a front-page story today the outburst came when Livingston Merchant, former U.S. ambassador to Canada, called on Diefenbaker for a farewell chat after Merchant decided to retire from the diplomatic service.

The newspaper, a strong supporter of the Kennedy administration, says that instead of a pleasant exchange, Merchant was met with an outburst because a few weeks earlier Kennedy had chatted privately with Pearson when Pearson attended a White House dinner for Nobel Prize winners.

Not only did Diefenbaker express his fury but he made a threat, The Post says. He told Merchant he had an offensive document the president had used during his May, 1961, Ottawa conference.

URGES OAS ENTRY

This was the much-reported working paper, prepared by presidential adviser Walt Rostow, urging Kennedy in his talks with Diefenbaker to "push" for Canadian entry into the Organization of American States, greater Canadian support for the Alliance for Latin American countries, more Canadian foreign aid and more vigilance in control of the Communists in Asia.

The Post says Merchant reported the incident to Washington, along with the Diefenbaker threat to make the working paper public and was instructed to tell Diefenbaker that he, Merchant, could not report the conversation to Kennedy. If he did, this would mean the end of further Kennedy negotiations with Diefenbaker.

The newspaper says that when Merchant visited Diefenbaker a second time, the prime minister was more composed and stated the working paper would not be used in the election campaign then coming up.

MENTIONED THREATS

The Post's report is the latest in a number on that working paper. Initial dispatches during the heat of the Canadian election campaign claimed the working paper contained economic and other threats against Canada and that it touched on the Canadian nuclear controversy and the Columbia River power treaty.

High sources have said that

MERCHANT

in fact there was no mention of the Columbia River or nuclear arms or any threats of reprisals.

On April 6, The Post reported in a dispatch from Montreal that the working paper contained a marginal note scribbled in Kennedy's handwriting. The Montreal Star, which was the first to report on the marginal note, quoted it as stating: "What do we do with the (deleted) on this point?"

In its Montreal dispatch The Post said it learned the deleted letters were S.O.B., indicating a derogatory reference to the Canadian leader.

Immediately after the Post story appeared, it is understood the White House got in touch with the Post editors and denied that any such reference to the prime minister had been made. Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, told this reporter he had explored the question of the alleged derogatory reference with high government officials and was told the president had made no such statement.

The Post now says the president is certain the S.O.B. does not appear on the working paper. He thinks he may have written S.O.B. but no one in Washington appears to be certain about that point.

There is no explanation of how the working paper was misplaced. The Post suggests the president carried it in his pocket and dropped it while at dinner.

OTTAWA (UPI)—Outgoing Prime Minister Diefenbaker declined comment today on the Washington Post story on the now famous "working paper."
